EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

TEXAS has $4,000,000 in her State Treasury.

THE Ohio campaign is progressing very favorably for the Republicans.

THE average price of labor in England and in Europe is one-half what it is in the United States.

THE extra session of the Legislature costs $3,000 per day and has thus far done absolutely nothing.

THE Senatorial dead-lock in New Hampshire still continues, notwithstanding the withdrawal of Senator Rollins.

A BANK robbery and a three million dollar fire came around, in the cycle of events, to be the sensations of last week.

WE are neither a prophet or a son of a prophet, but we predict that there will be a good crop of Republican victories this fall.

WITH an immigration of over half a million people a year there is no reason to think that this country will be depopulated very soon.

THE New York Tribune has come to the conclusion that Blaine and Tilden are the coming presidential candidates of their respective parties.

THE only slate factory at Harrisburg now is the one being run by the Democratic Legislative bunglers. It will scarcely pay the first dividend.

EX-GOVERNOR HOYT speaks favorably of the Republican State ticket. It is refreshing to notice that the ex-Governor is still possessed of a small amount of good sense.

AT Sacramento, last week, the thermometer stood at 112 degrees in the shade; and a San Francisco paper says that Sacramento is claimed to be the coolest place in the state.

THE Democratic party was never very firm in its support of any doctrine or policy, but if it has a distinguishing attribute that is its advocacy of the pernicious and liberty-destroying doctrine of free trade.

LOVERS of fruit will be pleased to know that, although the peach crop was rather more entirely killed off early last spring by the frost than is usual, yet there will be a bountiful supply for this season—which is also as usual.

MR. RANDALL is more modest than Mr. Carlisle. While the latter is a candidate for speaker, he is also announced as a candidate for senator from Kentucky. Mr. Randall declares that he is a candidate for speaker, but not for president.

THE strike of the telegraphers does not turn out a success as far as serious interruption of business is concerned. They seem to have overlooked the important consideration that in union there is strength even against Western Union.

THE re-election of Senator Thomas V. Cooper as Chairman of the Republican State Committee is an honor worthily conferred. Senator Cooper has rendered the party good service and has shown his capability as an excellent field marshal.

Some Free Trade Fallacies.

We clip the following excellent replies to free trade arguments from Truth, a New York journal: Truth's cosmopolitan contemporary, the Herald, informs the workingmen of this country that they have a very simple and efficient remedy in their hands, and advises them to move against the protective tariff.

If the tariff is protective, moving against it is not likely to prove either a simple or efficient remedy, and Truth assumes that it is so or the Herald would not call it a protective tariff But the Herald goes further and admits that "the protective tariff has accomplished in the past all that its advocates claim for it," and then draws the remarkable conclusion, "that it is now nothing but a dead weight on the commerce and industry of the country." Such reasoning as this impresses Truth with the idea that the Herald has either become a comic paper or that the recent warm wave has affected its logical faculties.

What could be more unreasonable than that the protective tariff, by restricting the foreign commerce of the nation, prevents a full and free development of its resources, and thereby restricts the employment of labor?

This is the Herald's logic, but all the facts in the case contradict its reasoning. As the immediate result of the protective tariff immigration has increased enormously, and yet labor has not been restricted in the face of this enormous increase of laborers. European workingmen have come, and are coming, to America in great numbers, because work is plenty and wages high. These workingmen cannot earn so much or live so well in England or Germany, and if it is true that the protective tariff "restricts the employment of labor," the laborers have not yet found it out. Indeed, the great argument in favor of a protective tariff is just the opposite of what the Herald assumes, and if the Herald will take the trouble to look around it will see that the effect of the tariff has been to widen the field of labor immensely.

It certainly cannot be said that by fostering manufactures the field of labor is restricted, but this is what the Herald asserts. It is very much distressed because the American manufacturer cannot compete with the foreign producer in his own market, through the operation of a protective tariff. If we had no protective tariff we would have no manufactures; if we had no manufactures we could not compete with the foreign produce in the foreign markets, for we should have nothing to compete with, and it can scarcely be said that the way to widen the field of labor is to stop work. Men who earn their bread in the manufactories of the country will see the force of the Herald's reasoning and decline to take its advice.

If the Herald had appealed to the agricultural instead of to the manufacturing classes there would have been more plausibility in its argument. Whatever the farmer buys in the shape of protected articles cost him more money than he would be required to pay with free trade; but, then, by bringing manufactures to his door a home market is created for him which more than counter-balances the increased cost of what he buys. He must sell to be able to buy, but if manufactures are to be discouraged immigration stopped and skilled labor compelled to seek other fields of employment, the farmer will not have the market which a protected tariff affords, and not being able to sell his crops he will be unable to avail himself of the advantages of free trade.

Again the Herald is very much distressed at the indications of overproduction, which it says are everywhere apparent. The only remedy it can see for this alarming condition of things is a foreign market. But which would the Herald, which would the workingman, regard as the greater evil—occasional over-production or no production at all? The Herald and the workingman must choose between these two, and it is apparent that the laborer prefers the former, for the Herald asserts that the workingman has contributed toward overproduction "by conceding that the tariff is imposed for his benefit and by voting for its continuance."

Finally the Herald declares the tariff restricts a man's power to procure the bread that is at hand.

How?

By giving him a higher rate of wages than he could otherwise obtain, and so providing him with more money to buy food with?

By giving him so much work and so much wages that he produces too much and so brings about that terrible condition of things which the Herald calls over-production?

Truth confesses it prefers over-production occasionally to non-production all the time. We have a great country, where even the Herald admits that the production of food is apparently without limits. It is better that population should be brought to America to eat that food here than that we should send it to Europe to feed the starving laborer there. American industries ought to be as diversified as American resources, and this can only be brought about by a protective tariff. We cannot compete with the pauper labor of Europe, and so we must build up a barrier against European production in our markets and compensate ourselves by bringing to this country a great population which will make the whole continent a market for our products.

IT is much to be regretted that the coal operators interested in the late Pittsburgh arbitration, are, if the papers report them correctly, refusing to abide by the decision. If this is true they are assuming a heavy responsibility which will surely be regretted in the future. In the struggles between employers and workingmen in the past the advantage has often been with the former, because of the general belief of the public that the latter were excessive in their demands and threatening in their conduct. In submitting their cause to disinterested arbitration, and then without hesitation accepting the result although a measure against them, they certainly discredit that charge, and if the employers reject the decision the condemnation of public opinion must veer to the other side. All judicious men must hope earnestly that no such folly will be perpetrated by the side that ought to exhibit the best judgment and greatest moderation, thus causing the system from which so much good was hoped to prove a failure.

PRESIDENT GEO. B. ROBERTS, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, lives in a house near Merrion, Montgomery county, which has been occupied by his own family for nearly two hundred years. The two hundredth anniversary is to be celebrated in September. Mr. Roberts is of Welsh descent and his ancesters were among the first settlers in Montgomery county.

"SAM" NEWELL, an old miller on Rocky Fork, Ohio, says Foraker wouldn't have been nominated for Governor if it hadn't been for him. He wasn't at the Convention and took no part in the preliminary canvassing; but when "Ben" was four years old and fell in the mill race, he pulled him out and saved his life.

IT is said that Governor Pattison saved the State $50,000 by vetoing items of the apportionment bill. That was right. But he called an extra session of the Legislature, the cost of which in seventeen days amounts to $51,000. The peculiar economy of this course is not immediately perceptible.

Need of a Protective Tariff.

A letter to the American Protectionist contains the following statement of the necessity for a protective tariff in the United States:

In order to make capital and labor safe in this country, we must protect it against English capital and labor, sufficiently to put it on terms of equality. The way to do this is by establishing and maintaining a protective tariff, adequate to accomplish it, on everything that we make or consume that comes in competition with what England makes or consumes.

First, our tariff must be high enough to equalize the difference between the prices of labor in this country and in England; second, in addition to that, it must be high enough to equalize the difference between the price of capital in this country and in England; third, in addition to the above, it must be high enough to protect our present smaller accumulations of capital invested in business, against attacks of the greater accumulations of capital in the same business in England. Otherwise the English manufacturer with his great capital will, by selling low, stand a loss equal to the small capital of our manufacturer, in order to ruin him, and then, when competition is thus removed, take possession of the whole market, raise his prices, and make his loss all back. Fourth, it must, in addition to this, be high enough to equalize our transportation with the cheaper transportation of England. This can be done by a steady, persistent, and efficient support and development of our ocean steam marine, until we can reach in American built ships, all ports at which we wish to develop trade in American goods. Fifth, the tariff must be adequate, in addition to all the above, to equalize our less stable financial system with the more stable financial system of England.

Such a tariff as this would simply put our capital and labor in competion with English capital and labor on an equal footing, and give them a fair field, and enable us to keep our labor fully employed at the present rates, and develop our manufacturing power until we can supply, first fully and completely, our home market; and, as soon as that is supplied, to develop steadily a foreign market for our surplus products.

Any tariff that is below this will tend, first, to throw our home market into the hands of the English, and give them a monopoly of it through the destruction of our own industries; and, secondly, it will tend to prevent us from getting possession of the foreign markets now controlled by England; and, thirdly, as we lose control of our home markets through importing English goods, labor will lose employment, capital will become unproductive, wages will go down and business become dull, until the laboring class (which are the great majority in this country) become, as they are in England, the mere tools and slaves of capital.

In other words, it is for the interest of every class in this country, whether capitalist or laborer, and of every kind of labor, to establish and maintain a protective tariff adequate to protect American capital in its competion with English cheap labor and cheap capital.

The most certain and sure preventive of monopolies in this country is the development of industries all over the country, and the home market all over the country, to such an extent that a few great establishments cannot control our market and our transportation and our labor, as they would if our market, instead of being disseminated all over this country, was concentrated in England, or even in New England, in a few hands; and everything we had to sell had to be transported to England, and everything we wanted to buy had to be brought back from England.

The moment we allow ourselves to be put into that position, we shall be tied hand and foot and given up soul and body to a few great English monopolists.

The Crops.

Notwithstanding the frequent and heavy rains and strong winds which have been so prevalent this summer, and which, it was feared, would seriously injure the grain, the reports we receive, says the Harrisburg Telegraph, indicate the harvesting throughout this region of very fine crops. The hay crop has also been exceptionally heavy, which, of course, a wet season always guarantees. There is no complaint heard of the prospects of corn, potatoes, or oats, except in a few localities where the fields are so situated that the water will lie on them, so that, on the whole, the farmers may be congratulated upon a prosperous season. In the old time, before the great western railroads were opened and the immense territory they traverse was proved to be, instead of a vast desert, as was then supposed, really a great agricultural region, this outcome of the crops in the Middle States would have given rise to fears of abnormally low prices. Now, however, increase or decrease in localities which would then have been regarded as of wide extent, have but little appreciable effect upon the prices; increase or decrease in one quarter being balanced by a corresponding increase or decrease in another; so that the supply leaves about the same relation to the demand one year with another The question, then, of the crop prospects away from his own farm, is not of so great importance to the farmer as it used to be. But still, such information is eagerly sought, and the papers of the great financial centers are full of such reports, reliable and unreliable, because of interest to the speculators who do not grow grain but seek their profit in gambling in futures. From the dispatches in the New York papers gathered for this purpose we may get a pretty fair idea of the value of such reports. One report from Milwaukee says the crops in Minnesota south of the Northern Pacific railroad will be very fine, while north of it, they have suffered terribly by drought, there not having been a drop of rain for six weeks in the Red River Valley. Instead of the estimated yield for Dakota and Minnesota of 60,000,000 bushels it says it will not exceed 40,000,000. Another report substantially corroborates this one; while still another says the outlook is splendid; that localities said to be affected by drought have had copious rains; that the prospects have nowhere been so bad as reported, and that the crop will be better than last year, or for several years past.

JUDGE HOADLY made a speech in Columbus the other evening which was considered so weak by the Democratic managers that they paid the short-hand writer who had been engaged by the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, and who was a Democrat, not to transcribe his notes. Other reporters, however, had taken an abstract of the speech, which is acknowledged to be the lamest kind of an effort.

THE Delaware peach growers report that they will have from two-thirds to three-fourths of a crop, and that the fruit will average better in quality than usual. This is cheering intelligence for the lovers of the luscious peach, but it would seem to be a forewarning of high prices.

OUR statesmen at Harrisburg are still improving the every shining hours by gathering ten dollars a day each from the State Treasury, but as the prospect of the Commonwealth reaping any benefit from their labors is very remote, they had better go home.

SECRETARY LINCOLN will accompany the president to the Yellowstone Valley, and Sheridan will guard them.

GENERAL NOTES.

Maganese has been discovered in large quantities in the iron ore beds of John Schmaler, at Seisholtzville, Berks county.

Mrs. Kunler, of Pendleton, Oregon, in making the hired man's bed, jerked the sheet and exploded a pistol lying under the pillow, killing her four-year-old daughter.

Two Philadelphia boys poured lamp oil on a cat, set it on fire, stood by and watched their victim burn to death, were arrested and held in $500 bail for court, all within two hours.

Two rich farmers fell out about a division line. They employed two poor lawyers and went into court. Now the lawyers rent the farms and hold judgment notes for the balance of their fees.

Two ladies contended for precedence in the court of Charles V. They appealed to the monarch, who, like Solomon, awarded, "Let the eldest go first." Such a dispute was never known afterward.

One of the principal graces of Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, was a prodigious abundance of fine hair. One day, at her toilet, to anger her heroic lord, she cut off her commanding tresses and flung them in his face.

Dade county, Ga., has no boundary line. The State engineer died on his way to the capital and his notes of the survey were lost. Many people in the region do not know whether they live in Dale or an adjoining county.

The centenary of the Bank of Ireland was celebrated on the 28th of June. Each of the officials and clerks received a bonus of 10 per cent. on his salary in honor of the occasion. The amount distributed was about £10,000.

They have an annual running race over in Persia. A lot of men enter their horses and deposit their entrance fees with the Shah. The race is then run, after which the Shah takes possession of the winner, and sticks to all the entrance money.

The American printing house for the blind, just dedicated at Louisville, is the first building ever erected in the world for that sole purpose. It stands in a large yard, surrounded with trees, and is of brick, three stories high, with an ample basement.

In a dwelling house that was burned near North Adams, Mass., three children were sleeping, their parents being away from home. The house dog succeeded in getting into the children's room and rescued them with great difficulty, as two of them fainted.

A girl in Southington, Conn., was discarded by her affianced husband. Her cousin handed her a bottle of liquid, telling her to throw it into the false one's face to "make him smart a little." It was vitriol, which destroyed his eyesight and horribly disfigured him.

How many know that a horse gets up before and a cow gets up behind, and the cow eats grass from her and the horse eats to him? How many know that a surveyor's mark upon a tree never gets any higher from the ground or what tree bears fruit without bloom?

An ex-soldier of the Confederacy, on trial for larceny at Beaufort, S. C., the other day, was defended by a colored lawyer, who made a pathetic appeal for the man who had lost an arm in the service, but all the same the court gave him two years in the penitentiary.

As a dog in South Bend, Ind., was quietly gnawing a bone, a rat crawled out from under the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street, and, rushing close up to the jaws of the dog, made off with the bone before the astonished dog could recover sufficiently to pursue it.

Moundsville, W. Va., has a haunted house. A skeleton wanders about the premises, accompanied by an indescribable sound which penetrates the air for miles about, and seems to originate in the earth. The skeleton performs nightly before large and terrified audiences.

At Quito, the only city in the world on the line of the equator, the sun sets and rises at 6 o'clock the year round. Your clock may break down, your watch get cranky, but the sun never makes a mistake here In one part of the city it is the summer season and in the other part it is winter.

At Jonesville, Ind., Henry Prather went to an old, unused pump, and while drinking from the spout felt something go down his throat. He soon turned deathly sick and vomited up a small water snake, four or five inches in length, after which the young man recovered. The snake came out alive and unhurt.

It is perhaps not generally known that the culture of the cinchona, from the bark of which quinine is extracted, has recently entered upon an entirely new phase. In 1865 the seed of the finest and rarest quality of the cinchona tree was introduced into Java, and since that time the Dutch have developed its quinine producing properties with extraordinary skill.

It is noted at White Sulphur Springs that the Southern planter of the style of a quarter of a century ago is scarce, and that the place is the resort of "those mostly in trade, whom the war dealt more gently with or who have recovered from the blow; and these are numerous enough with the increased body of Nortern visitors and the abundant tide from the West to maintain the tradition of ancient gayety."

Captain John Flush, of Lawrenceburg, Ohio, has a pet toad that he has trained to catch flies, and the little creature will come to him when he whistles and submit to being placed on the table where some attraction has been placed for flies. This done, it will amuse an audience by the expert and swift manner it will dispose of these winged pests, jumping at times several feet high and protruding its tongue almost an inch in efforts to reach its prey.

A man in Ohio a few nights ago was roused out of his slumbers by a burglar. He pursued the fellow with a shotgun, but did not succeed in shooting him. Soon the burglar came to a river and plunged in, but not being a swimmer, he sank and was drowned. And now the grand jury has indicted the householder for murder in the first degree for not going to the assistance of the drowning man. This is strange, in view of the fact that had he previously shot the burglar nothing would have been done to him.

Poetry.

MY SISTER.

[We clip the following beautiful thought and tribute from the Toledo (Ohio) Journal. It is from the pen of the gifted and accomplished daughter of Mrs. Judge Potter, of Toledo, well known in this and adjoining counties.—Ed.]

MA SŒUR.

Once 'mid the week-day trials of a clouded life
Broke the sweet sunshine of an angel face;
No snowy wings, no crown of jeweled gold—
Only the plain gray gown of simple fold—
No angel's pinions could be half so fair.
Ma Sœur.

Lost! held within the convent's four dark walls,
Her mortal beauty shrouded by her soul's high aim.
But who can say that unto earth she's lost,
Who sooths the pain-racked body tempest tossed
And leads the broken heart to God with her sweet prayer.
Ma Sœur.

No happier lot could ever come to me
Than in those four dark walls with thee to live,
To leave the world's false friends far, far behind
And under thy sweet guidance true repentance find,
To lay my weary head upon thy breast and lose the old time care,
Ma Sœur.

To find the sanctity which thou hast found,
To give to Him the remnant of my days,
And with thy hand in mine to seek the throne
To know that after death I will not be alone;
For sheltered in Christ's bosom there will wait me there,
Ma Sœur.

CLARE POTTER.

Toledo, June 21, 1883.

"GOING TO THE BAD."

It was at a rural homestead
That a farmer old and gray
Sought for news from passing stranger
Of his son who'd run away.

"I know your son," the stranger said,
Spake the farmer, "Tell me pray,
How is my Dick, my absent boy,
Who's been gone ten years to-day?"

"Down in New York," the strangor said,
"There I saw him, and they say
He's going to the Bad——" "Poor boy," Moaned the farmer, led astray."

"No, no!" the stranger did exclaim,
"You must wipe those tears away;
For though he's going to the Bad——"
But the farmer murmured, "Stay!

"Don't pierce my heart with his misdeeds,
My life he's wrecked—my hair turned gray;
He's going to the bad, and now
In the grave my head I'd lay."

"Oh, cheese your grief!" the stranger said,
"For your boy is rich and gay,
And he's going to the Bad-en
Baden Springs for health and play."

Then the farmer packed his grip-sack
And to New York went that day,
And had his gambler son a mortgage lift
That did on his homestead lay.

THE OLDEST DOLL IN THE WORLD.

BY LILLIE E. BARR.

I.

In Britian's Great Museum, on a shelf
In the Egyptian room, I saw last year
The oldest doll in all the world; an elf,
Grimy and grim, and cold, and very queer
With head of blackened clay—the rudest toy
That ever gave a little maiden joy.

II.

Taken from out the dusky, mummied arms
Of a small child, it had perchance been bought
In hundred-gated Thebes, while yet alarms
Of the fierce Shepherd Kings were kept in thought
And put with her beneath the coffin lid.
When men were building the first Pyramid.

III.

Legless and armless, it had made a part
Of one sweet life; in loving arms had lain
Close to an innocent, warm, beating heart;
Been kiss'd and scolded, and then kiss'd again.
Just as our waxen beauties, fair and gay,
Delight the little maidens of to-day.

Our Story Teller.

Winning and Losing.

"Ha! ha! ha!—It'll be such a joke," and Richard Strout gave himself an approving wink as he stood before the glass admiringly contemplating a complicated bow knot, accomplished at the expense of vast mental effort and the crush and ruin of a half dozen cravats.

It was the evening of Mrs. Dazzlit's ball. All Antequam—at least the fashion of it—would be there, and Mr. Richard Strout had gotten himself up with special reference to outshining his own brilliant self. He was to be the escort of Miss Coryphe Wellmet, the beauty of Antequam, and only daughter of a rich retired banker who might any day succumb to a benignly providential stroke of apoplexy.

In the race in which the stake was the lady and her fortune, Richard Strout was sure he had the inside track. It was plain, to his eyes, she was smitten—how could she help it, for that matter, wasn't he, the aforesaid Richard, simply irresistible? He hadn't just popped the question yet, but there was plenty of time for that, and he would do it in due season—and, when he did he had no misgivings as to what would be the answer. Having the fish already securely hooked, like a true Waltonian he would enjoy playing with it awhile.

But it was the joke Mr. Strout was contemplating jointly with the wonderful bow of his cravat! Let him unfold it to Miss Coryphe himself as they meet in her father's front parlor preparatory to starting for the ball.

"See here, Corrie," he said, touching her elbow with a finger miraculously gloved.

"I got a little job for you."

"What is it, most noble Dick?"

"To tame a bear."

"Must I begin now!" she asked with a roguish look which seemed to intimate that the subject to be operated on might not be a thousand miles away.

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed Richard, not very heartily. "Present company accepted, you know. The particular grizzly on which I would try your docile powers, is not here, but will be at the ball to-night. You've heard me mention Bruce Dandridge?" he began.

"The bore and book-worm?"

"Yes."

"And woman hater?"

"Exactly—how well you remember!"

"A man too bashful to kiss his own mother, I think I've heard you say. Well what of this dried specimen of yours?"

"He's visiting some friends here in Antequam, and as I said, will be at Mrs. Dazzlit's ball to-night."

"Now, Corrie," he continued, "I have laid a wager with Charley Brace, an old schoolmate of Bruce Dandridge's and mine, that if Bruce can be introduced to you he will fall in love and propose to you in a fortnight. Won't yon help me win?"

"You don't want me to court him do you?" Coryphe replied, "you know it isn't leap year."

"No, but if you'll let yourself out to play the agreeable, I think I'll stand a chance. I know it is heavy odds, but it proves my confidence in yous charms."

"Well, trot out your monster and let me see him," said Coryphe, buttoning the dozenth button on her right glove which completed the preparations for departure.

Mrs. Dazzlit's spacious parlors were already crammed when the fairy Coryphe entered with her beau. The belle of Antequam never appeared to better advantage, and Richard Strout swelled with pride at the consuming envy gleaming from the circle of masculine eyes, of which he and his companion were the centre.

"I see him now," whispered Richard, when they had paid their devoirs to the mistress of the mansion; "let me bring him at once that no time may be lost."

"Miss Wellmet, Mr. Dandridge," said Richard, returning and presenting a tall and singularly handsome gentleman who colored deeply, but in spite of his confusion, he did and said the right things without a bit of awkwardness.

Richard slipped away and left the two together. A set was forming for a dance. Bruce Dandridge could do no less than ask the lady to join him in it.

"I fear, Miss Wellmet, you will find me an indifferent partner," he apologized; "should I make mistakes I must trust to you to make them right."

He did make several mistakes at first but Coryphe corrected them so pleasantly that his embarassment was trifling, and soon quite wore off, and after a few turns, his mathematical head so completely mastered the figures that none would have known but he had taken a "double first" at the dancing academy.

The quadrille over Mr. Dandridge led Coryphe to a seat and engaged her in conversation in which both seemed deeply interested.

"Isn't she doing beautifully," said Dick to himself, looking from a distance and noting the encouraging looks with which Coryphe drew Bruce out, and the brilliant light that shone in the latter's eyes as they met those of his listener.

They had another dance and another talk together longer than the first.

"By George, its going on swimmingly!" Dick mentally ejacuated. "I must manage to have him see her home. At this rate I shall win far inside of time."

Approaching and casting a meaning look on Coryphe.

"Would you mind if I went home and left you in Mr. Dandridge's care?" he asked. "I—I've even been taken with a raking headache. I'm sure I owe Bruce no apology for affording him a real pleasure."

Mr. Strout was excused, and, as it almost seemed to him, with thanks.

Next day when he called to hear Coryphe's report of progress, he was gratified to find that Bruce Dandridge had preceded him. It nearly looked as if his own coming had disturbed a tete-a-tete.

Mr. Strout couldn't help rubbing his hands in silent glee. He made but a brief stay. He was too shrewd to mar his chances by trenching on the rule that two's company.

"Isn't she a trump?" he cried as he walked home exultant.

And day after day as Richard renewed his visits he found Coryphe and Bruce together. It almost seemed as if it were the same tete-a-tete continued.

"Won't Charley Brace and Bruce Dandridge," he chuckled, "look like a pair of noodles when the one hears his money jingling in my pockets and I've married Coryphe under the other's nose!"

Business called Richard Strout to the city for a few days. He sent a note to Coryphe telling her to 'keep it up lively,' hinting that on his return he should have a secret of his own to disclose, the nature of which she had probably long ago surmised.

Dick and Charlie Brace had agreed that their wager should be left in Coryphe's decision, for reasons of delicacy to be communicated secretly and Dick went away convinced that good news would await his return.

Three days sufficed for his business in the city, and Dick was taking a parting stroll down Broadway to kill the hours till train time.

He stopped suddenly. From the door of a hotel a lady and gentlemen came out and were about entering a carriage having a pile of trunks on top.

"Hello! Dick," cried Bruce Dandridge on whose arm hung Coryphe, blushing like a rose. "Sorry my wife and I didn't see you sooner."

"Your wi——" Dick couldn't finish the word.

"Yes, it was a quiet little affair, you see—no cards—no use—and now we are on our way to the steamer for a quiet little wedding trip to Europe. But bye-bye old fellow, time is up."

What it was that Dick muttered we won't pretend to say. If it was congratulation it stuck in his throat.

Coryphe waved her hand from the carriage window, and Dick turned away with a mumbled malediction on the sex.

He had won his bet, but lost the prize he most coveted.

Almost as Wise as a Serpent.

"A great structure, my friend, a great structure," observed a clerical looking gentleman to a stranger who stood in rapt contemplation of the bridge. "It is a wonderful evidence of man's skill and enterprise!"

"No, you don't!" exclaimed the stranger, edging away, and eyeing the clerical gentleman from head to foot with every symptom of distrust. "I know your game! In a minute you will want me to go with you to get a lottery ticket cashed, and before I know which side of the street I want to take to get home, you and your pals will bunko me out of my last hard earned cent! No, you don't, I've been there before."

"But, my friend, you mistake me entirely," replied the clergyman mildly, "I am a minister of the Gospel!"

"A genuine minister?" demanded the other, looking more reassured. "Are you giving it to me straight? No taffy in this?"

"I assure you, sir, I am a clergyman," said the clerical gentleman, with dignity. "You may believe me, sir. What I tell you is true."

"Put it here?" exclaimed the stranger, offering his hand. "Put it right here! I thought you might be one of those bunko-steerers, and I was on to you. I'm glad you are a minister, or I have been on the lay for one for a long time. You steer the plant and I will set up the drinks, and if we don't work that congregation of yours out of every cent there is in the joint, you may take me anywhere and just job me out of the last rattle without a squeal out of me if I have to mortgage my farm. Come on what do you say."

It would be interesting to know what the clerical gentleman wanted to say to that proposition.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Whipping Story.

A boy—no matter his name, for he sits in Parliament now—a boy who was both nervous and credulous had been made to believe that a decoction of fresh walnut juice used as an ointment would harden any part of the body to which it was applied. Having been complained of on a half-holiday and anticipating that he should have to "stay at nine" on the morrow, he procured some green walnuts, squeezed their juice out into a basin, and daubed himself freely with the liquid over night. Next morning he found to his dismay that he had stained himself a rich mahogony color, which would not wash off. It was in vain that he rubbed himself with a soapy sponge and called upon his neighbors to assist him in this operation but the stains would not go; several of his friends, however, reassured him by saying that they did not show much, and it was on the strength of these statements that the self-painted one went into school. At nine o'clock he appeared in the washing room, and being too shy to give the head master a hint of what had happened, knelt down without a word. Dr. G. fairly recoiled. But when the sixth form preceptor, who had got an inkling of the story, laughingly explained how and for what purpose walnut juice had been used, the doctor's mirth was too great to allow him to proceed with the castigation. He threw down the birch and hurriedly left the room.—From "Seven Years at Eton."

Converted by Lightning.

Montezuma (Ga.) Record.

Up in Huston county there is a young man who has heretofore borne the reputation of being the wickedest fellow in the section where he lived. A very interesting revival took place not long ago, and much interest was manifested. One of the ministers approached the young man and asked if he had a Bible, and he replied negatively. The good man advised him to buy one and take it home and read it. He said he had no money to throw away on Bibles. Then the minister offered to give him one, and he refused to take it. He went home and repaired to his farm. While in the field an angry rain-cloud came, and soon vivid flashes of lightning began to play around in the neighborhood of the wicked young man. Soon a bolt came along and knocked him winding over the cotton rows. The falling rain-drops in his face soon revived him after a few minutes, and he proceeded toward the house, but just before entering the gate he received another shock which laid him prostate and helpless on the ground. Reviving again, he went into the house and related to his wife the ordeal he had just passed through, and how near he approached death. Next day he went to town, bought a Bible, attended church during the gracious revival, and embraced religion. This is one instance where a man got religion by electricity.

A little boy went to his first tea party when four years and three months old. Upon his hostess asking him how he liked his tea, he replied: "It is very nice, but it tastes very much of the water."

Should the Hair be Cut?

It may be that cutting and shaving may for the time increase the action of the growth, but it has no permanent effect either upon the hair-bub or the hair sac, and will not in any way add to the life of the hair. On the contrary, cutting and shaving will cause the hair to grow longer for the time being, but in the end will inevitably shorten its term of life by exhausting the nutritive action of the hair forming apparatus. When the hairs are frequently cut they will usually become coarser, often losing the beautiful gloss of the fine and delicate hairs. The pigment will likewise change, brown, for instance, becoming chestnut, and black changing to a dark brown. In addition the ends of very many will be split and ragged, presenting a brush-like appearance. If the hairs appear stunted in their growth upon portions of the scalp or beard, or gray hairs crop up here and there, the method of clipping off the ends, of the short hairs, of plucking out the ragged, withered and gray hairs, will allow them to grow stronger, longer and thicker.

Mothers, in rearing their children, should not cut their hair at certain periods of the year (during the superstitious period of full moon), in order to increase its length and luxuriance as they bloom into womanhood and manhood. This habit of cutting the hair of children brings evil in place of good, and is also condemned by the distinguished worker in this department, Professor Kaposi, of Vienna, who states that it is well known that the hair of women who possess luxuriant locks from the time of girlhood never again attains its original length after having once been cut. Pincus has made the same observation by frequent experiment, and he adds that there is a general opinion that frequent cutting of the hair increases its length; but the effect is different from that generally supposed. Thus, upon one occasion he states that he cut off circles of hair an inch in diameter on the heads of healthy men, and from week to week compared the intensity of growth of the shorn place with the rest of the hair. The result was surprising to the close and careful observer, as he found in some cases the numbers were equal, but generally the growth became slower after cutting, and he has never observed an increase in rapidity.

I might also add that I believe many beardless faces and bald heads in middle and advancing ages are often due to constant cutting and shaving in early life. The young girls and boys seen daily upon our streets with their closely cropped heads, and the young men with their clean shaven faces, are year by year by this fashion having their hair forming apparatus overstrained.—Dr. Shoemaker.

Ingersoll's Reflections on Death.

[From the New York World.]

The following lines are an extract taken from a letter recently written by Colonel Ingersoll from Long Beach to a personal friend who had suffered a bereavement in the death of his mother:

"After all there is something tenderly appropriate in the serene death of the old. Nothing is more touching than the death of the young, the strong. But when the duties of life have all been nobly done—when the sun touches the horizon—when the purple twilight falls upon the present, the past and future—when memory with dim eyes can scarcely spell the records of the vanished days—then, surrounded by kindred and by friends, death comes like a strain of music. The day has been long, the road weary, and we gladly stop at the inn.

"Life is a shadowy, strange and winding road, on which we travel for a little way—a few short steps, just from the cradle with its lullaby of love to the low and quiet wayside inn where all at last must sleep, and where the only salutation is "Good Night."

"Nearly forty-eight years ago, under the snow in the little town of Cazenovia, my poor mother was buried. I was but two years old. I remember her as she looked in death. That sweet, cold face has kept my heart warm through all the years."

Why are Butchers Fat?

"I give it up," said a jolly big butcher when asked if he could give a reason why so many butchers were fat. It's a butcher's misfortune that he is fat. I suppose one reason we are so fat is because we eat enough, keep regular hours and get up early in the morning. There's something queer about it how so many butchers are fat, but if we stay in the business any little time and have any constitution to build upon we invariably become busters.

"Yes," said the butcher, "we always look on the bright side of life and try to keep even tempered. I don't think the business has anything to do with it. If it is a man's nature to be fat he will flesh up, no matter in what business he may be engaged. While a very large number of the men about here who actually handle the meat are corpulent, still some are skinny fellows here, who if they stayed here forever wouldn't get fat. The business is healthy; the men who are in it were healthy before they went into it, and of course as natural consequences they flesh up wonderfully. We don't have anything to think about or trouble our heads about, and I guess that's the principal reason."

The reporter went along a little further and soon encountered a tall butcher, fully six feet and of huge proportions.

In reply to interrogation, he said: "They come here strong, rugged, healthy young men, and although their work is laborious it is not exhausting like other kinds of labor. To be sure they have considerable time between acts to rest. They, as a rule, take pretty good care of themselves, and then, I noticed that they always take home the best pieces of beef. No chucks in theirs. In a word, good living and a good constitution makes the butchers fat.

The Christian Era.

Professor Sattler, of Munich, claims the distinction of having solved the problem as to the year in which Christ was born, and of having demonstrated the fact that the current year is probably 1888 instead of 1883. He bases his proofs mainly on three coins which were struck in the reign of Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, and which date, consequently, from the first half of the first century of the era. Madden admits the genuineness of these coins, and other numismatic writers do the same. The evidence they offer is said to coincide with the narrative of the gospels and with astronomical calculations. The following are the results at which Professor Sattler has arrived: Jesus was born on the 25th of December, 749 years after the founding of Rome, and commenced his public career on the seventeenth of November, 780 years after the founding of Rome. He was then thirty years, ten months and twenty two days old. The date on which he commenced his career fell in the fifteenth year of the Emperor Tiberius, and in the 46th year after the building of Herod's temple. This is in accordance with St. Luke iii: 1, and St. John ii: 20. Jesus died on the 7th of April, 783 of the Roman era, that is to say, on the Friday before Passover; for it has been ascertained by exact calculation that Passover fell that year on the 7th of April, 783; and, as the latter year was a Jewish leap year, and consisted, accordingly, of thirteen months, his public career lasted two years and seven months. According to Professor Sattler, the Christian reckoning is at fault by five years, and we are now, therefore, in 1888 and not in 1883.

Asleep on an Engine.

English papers relate how the signal man at Llanduno saved the Irish mail passengers from what might have proved a terrible fate. The signal man at the junction received a message from the signal man at Conway, the next station toward Holyhead, that a light engine was coming. The junction signal man, knowing that the Irish mail was due, decided to run the engine into a siding in order to permit the express to pass. He accordingly put up all the signals against the light engine, but to his extreme astonishment the engine came straight into the junction at full speed, swept round the corner, dashing past all the danger signals and disappeared from view down the line toward Chester. A moment's reflection convinced the signal man that both driver and stoker must be asleep. He accordingly wired to the Colwyn Bay station signal man—"Engine coming; driver asleep; put fog signals on line." The man at Colwyn Bay was equally prompt, for, running out of his box, he had hardly time to lay a number of signals when the engine came thundering along and an explosion followed which effectually awoke the men. The engine was stopped and run back into a siding, when it was discovered that the fire had gone out, that the water had disappeared from the boiler and that the men had been asleep some time. Inquiry resulted in their immediate discharge. They had been fifteen hours on duty.

Wrecked by a Cow.

ASHLAND, July 17.—While the morning freight on the Reading Railroad was running through the cut at Greenback, a small station near Shamokin, it ran over a cow, and the cars left the track and nearly the entire train was wrecked. William Thomas, of Shamokin, who was riding on the train, received such severe injuries that he died soon after reaching home. James Hoffman, a brakeman, was seriously injured while jumping from the roof of a box car. Several others were slightly injured while making their escape. Thomas leaves a wife and a large family. The loss to the company is estimated at about $10,000. Ten freight cars were smashed, and east-bound trains were delayed several hours and passengers had to be transferred.

Eloping while the Old Folks were Away.

READING, July 17.—There was an elopement at the village of Blandon, about nine miles from the city, last evening. A young man of the place has for some time paid attention to a young lass, who is barely out of her teens, and it was generally understood that he was the accepted suitor, but the parents of the young lady seemed to view the matter in a different light and strenuously objected to the match. Yesterday afternoon, while the old folks took a drive to this city, the lovers took advantage of the situation and packed their trunks and left for parts unknown. An effort will be made to capture the runaways.

More Small-pox.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 16.—Ten new cases of small-pox were reported to the health commission to-day. Most of the new cases are of a mild type. The number of cases in the city since the outbreak of the disease is seventy-two.

How a Woman's Life was Saved.

After she had tested the skill of all the best doctors in Western Pennsylvania and New York, and had paid over $1,000 without receiving any permanent good, the limbs became affected with even tenfold greater virulence, not only eating away the flesh, but attacking the bones beneath. It also affected her head and face, making her almost blind and deaf, reduced to a mere skeleton, weighing but 80 pounds, the doctors pronounced her at death's door. Peruna was then given her, as stated, and with the result given on page 24 in Dr. Hartman's "Ills of Life." She took no other medicine and is perfectly well.

Anniversary Exercises of Geo. L. Potter Post, of Milesburg.

On Tuesday evening, the 17th instant, the first anniversary of the very prosperous post of the G. A. R. at Milesburg held its first anniversary under circumstances which were unusually favorable. At an early hour visitors arrived from all directions and gathered around the centre of attraction—the large canvas tent in which all the festivities of the evening were to take place. It is very commodious and will comfortably accommodate over one thousand people, and it is calculated that fully that many people assembled in and near the tent during the evening.

The bean supper was the initiatory part of the festivities and the assembled guests were bidden to partake of it at half past 6 o'clock, and when the time arrived they addressed themselves to the pleasant task in genuine army style. The bill-of-fare provided for the occasion consisted of beans prepared as only soldiers know so well how to prepare them, hard tack and pork. These substantial dishes were served on tin plates and conveyed to the mouth on spoons also of tin. All seemed to enjoy the supper and the ladies, of whom a large number were present, munched the hard biscuit and discussed the beans with that genuine complacency and satisfaction which so often depicts itself on the female countenance when strawberry ice cream or soda water are the refreshments provided. The pleasant experiences of a soldier's life were comprehended to their fullest extent. This repast continued two hours or longer when the assembly was called to order for the purpose of enjoying themselves in a slightly different way. Rev. Mr. Morris, the pastor of the Milesburg Evangelical church, began the programme of exercises with an invocation. Austin Curtin, the very energetic commander of Potter Post, made an address of welcome which was cordial in the extreme. His remarks in reference to the prosperity of the G. A. R. in general and of Potter Post in particular gave the friends of the order cause for encouragement. Gen. James A. Beaver delivered an interesting address. "Joe Kay," of Philadelphia, the funny man of the G. A. R., was also present, and entertained the audience in his irresistible manner with the most comical stories and cane music in which the different airs were distinctly recognizable. Mr. John Joe Thompson, of Potter's Bank, a member of Centre Hall Post, was observed in the audience and Commander Austin Curtin called on him for a speech. He responded in an enthusiastic manner, impressing the audience with the fact that he is a thorough G. A. R. man and will lend his most ardent efforts to its support. The commanders of the separate posts represented also made remarks among whom was Commander Smith, of Philipsburg.

The entire festivities were highly enjoyable and were prolonged almost until the first hours of morning. Among the posts represented were the Lock Haven Post, Philipsburg Post, Unionville Post, Howard Post, Eagleville Post, Lemont Post, Centre Hall Post and the valiant No. 95 of Bellefonte. Curtin and Milesburg bands were also present discoursing fine music.

An Unprecedented Wind Storm in Des Moines.

DES MOINES, July 16.—This city was visited by a terrific wind storm early this morning, which surpassed anything of the kind ever seen here before. At no time has the velocity of the wind been so great. It commenced blowing a gale at 2 o'clock, and kept steadily increasing until 3 o'clock, when the storm swept over the city at the rate of forty miles an hour for a period of five minutes. The wind gauge at the Signal Service office crowded in at the rate of forty-eight miles per hour. A heavy rain accompanied the storm and considerable damage was done throughout the city. Chestnut Row, a fine row of residences, and the Trostle Block were unroofed, as were also several houses. Great destruction was wrought among shade trees and shrubbery in all parts of the town. So far as reported no one was injured.

Superior Excellence.

The reasons for Peruna's superior excellence in all diseases, and its modus operandi, are fully explained in Dr. Hartman's lecture reported in his book on the "Ills of Life, and How to Cure them," from page 1 to page 10, though the whole book should be read and studied to get the full value of this par excellent remedy. These books can be had at all the drug stores gratis.

Peruna is the best immediate Expectorant (Cough Medicine) that has yet been compounded by physician or druggist. There is nothing in medical print that can at all compare with it. And no less so is it the very best tonic, stimulant, nervine, diuretic, alterative, anti-dyspeptic, appetizer, hematic (blood medicine), &c., &c., that has ever been compounded by doctor or layman. It should, therefore, always be kept on hand for immediate use.

Drowned in Beer.

Concerning this Popular Beverage two Men Express their Minds.

"The fact is, sir, and you may stick a pin there, that the people of this country are likely to be drowned in a flood of lager beer," shouted an enthusiastic teetotaler the other day into the ear of your cornered correspondent. "That German drink has struck us hard. It is the second deluge."

"Yes, and the worst of this beer-drinking business is that it gets up kidney troubles, as a heavy wind raises the waves," added a city physician, who had a knowledge of the times and a tendency to metaphor. "The midnight 'schooner' leaves behind it a wake of furred tongues, headaches, torpid livers, nausea, and all that, and lays the foundation of Bright's Disease."

This melancholy fact accounts in part for the increasing sales of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, which at once mitigates these symptoms. Price 25 cents. Ask your physician about it.

He Repeats the Remark.

"Will you please repeat that remark, Mr. Mathison?"

Turning so as to look your representative squarely in the face, the head of the house of Soren Mathison & Co., Pharmacists, No. 1802 State street, Marble Block, Chicago, replied: "Yes, sir, with pleasure. My remark was that we consider PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, now called PARKER'S TONIC, the best article of its kind in the market. Our sales for the last six months tell the whole story and settle the question. The Tonic, like a good dinner, carries its own recommendation with it. It's bound to sweep the West like a prarie on fire. In cases of rheumatism, dyspepsia and liver and kidney troubles it scores successes and wins friends every day."

Hiscox & Co. beg to call public attention to the fact that hereafter PARKER'S GINGER TONIC will be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. We make this change for the reason that unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger; and as ginger is really an unimportant flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac-simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

TUTT'S PILLS CURE TORPID LIVER.
TUTT'S PILLS IMPART APPETITE.

DR. TUTT has succeeded in combining in these pills the heretofore antagonistic qualities of a STRENGTHING, PURGATIVE, and a PURIFYING TONIC.

Their first apparent effect is to increase the appetite by causing the food to properly assimilate. Thus the system is nourished, and by their tonic action on the digestive organs, regular and healthy evacuations are produced.

The rapidity with which PERSONS TAKE ON FLESH while under the influence of these pills, indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, melancholy, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health & strength to the system. Sold everywhere.

Operators' Strike.

NEW YORK, July 19.—John Campbell said this afternoon that instructions were sent out by the committee to men all over the country and in Canada that unless a countermanding order was given meanwhile there would be a general suspension of business at noon to-day, Washington time. At 9 30 a last appeal was sent to General Eckert in the hope that at the last moment he might accede to the demands of the operators, but as no reply was received it was decided to let matters take their course. The instructions were not countermanded and at noon the operators in two hundred cities in the United States and Canada struck. The operators of the Western Union, Mutual Union, American Rapid, Baltimore and Ohio, Great Northwestern of Canada and Mutual Union of Canada joined in the strike. Also the linemen of the telegraph, telephone and electric light companies. The brotherhood numbers about 7,000 men and 1,000 women.

BALTIMORE, July 19.—At the main office of the Western Union company eleven of the day force left. It is not yet known how many have left the branch offices. At 1.30 p. m. there were twelve operators at work in the main office, and the superintendent is of the opinion that he can call on a sufficient number, probably twenty-eight in all, to handle all messages coming in. In the Baltimore and Ohio office there are eight operators at work, and their lines are kept open. At points along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio operators are receiving railroad matter, but refusing all commercial business.

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—The telegraph office was not entirely depleted and a small force which has been increased by a call upon some of the members of the night force, is now at work. Superintendent Zeublin stated that the office is now able to transact business fairly well, if there is a force of proportionate size at other places.

Milwaukee, Pittsburg, Portland, and other cities are suffering from the strike.

NEW YORK, July 20.—At 10 o'clock this morning there were singularly few evidences of a strike about the Western Union building. There was the usual activity about the receiving windows, but nothing more. None of the strikers appeared either in the basement or operating rooms. A force of about 250 operators was at work, apparently about half the desks being occupied. Superintendent Dealy said the outlook was very encouraging, desks being gradually filled by new hands. They had a full force, though not the regular number of operators. Of the ladies 75 out of the regular force of 130 had remained faithful, and they had succeeded in obtaining about 35 recruits. About one-quarter of the men were with them, and their wires were all working clear, with the exceptions of Boston and some of the southern points, where there was still some delay.

A meeting of the striking telegraphers was held this afternoon. Over 1,000 persons were present, including about 400 of the striking linemen. John Mitchell presided and telegrams were read from different assemblies warning the men to put no faith in newspaper reports and that the ranks of the brotherhood remained solid. A delegation of the executive committee of the Knights of Labor was presented and a resolution, which they had adopted in a recent meeting, expressing sympathy with the strikers and promising them aid in carrying out their movement, was read. The strikers showed the greatest unanimity of sentiment throughout and it was generally believed that the companies would soon come to terms. It was reported that the telegraphers of the elevated railroads would join the strikers to-morrow.

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—The telegraphic situation here this morning is better than yesterday and is constantly improving. In addition to the sixty operators at work in the main office, Manager Brown has reopened a dozen branch offices in this city.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—The Western Union office has received several more operators to-day and business is being forwarded as fast as received to all points not crippled. Two of yesterday's strikers have made application for reinstatement. No action has yet been taken in their case. The strikers maintain excellent deportment.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 20.—The telegraph operators are still absent and firm. The Western Union manager is alone in the office, save the reinforcement of one lady who applied this morning and was set to work.

MILWAUKEE, July 22.—Telegraphers here are still out. The operators from Fond Du Lac, Racine and Chicago, were induced by the brotherhood to return home. The force in the Western Union office is still very small.

CHICAGO, July 22.—The striking operators held a meeting last night at which between seven and eight hundred were present. The meeting was addressed by members of other local unions, and promises were extended of financial aid if needed. Two hundred new members were admitted, including clerks in the delivery department of the Western Union. A number of messages were read from Detroit, Buffalo, New York and other cities, outlining the situations at those points. The members of the Brotherhood report that a great many railroad operators came into the city during the day, but that on the facts being represented them, they joined the strikers.

NEW YORK, July 22.—About nine hundred striking telegraph operators went on an excursion to day to Long Branch. A meeting of the remainder was held during the afternoon. A dispatch was read from Philadelphia stating that the strikers there stood firm and would not back down. It was stated that a number of wires and cables had been broken during a fire in Vandewater street. There was a dispatch read stating that the affairs of the Hartford office were in a deplorable condition. Members were advised to stay away from the Western Union building as it was said that company had their emissaries lurking about with intent, if possible, to break up and demoralize the Brotherhood. It was reported that they had forty-five persons, many of them plugs, at work sending off dispatches, some of which had accumulated since the 19th inst.

The British Team Victorious.

WIMBLEDON, July 21.—The British marksmen have won the rifle match. At the close of yesterday's shooting the Americans were eight points ahead, and they came on to the field this morning in the best of spirits. At the end of the shooting at 800 yards they had increased their lead to 24. At the 900 yards range they failed signally, and the British not only cut down their lead but went ahead themselves ten points which was increased to 45 at the end of the match. The weather opened very unpropitiously for the match. Rain poured in torrents and converted the grounds into pools of water.

Over the Walls to Freedom.

DANVILLE, July 20.—James W. Hart, John Engel and Samuel Clark took French leave of the county prison yesterday. The escape was made with the aid of a knife and a piece of broomstick. With these the prisoners loosened the stones in the wall, striking the place where two former prisoners, Arter and Treass, escaped some years ago. After making a hole in the wall they let themselves down into the yard with the aid of a poker and strips of blankets made into a rope. It is surmised that they were assisted over the outer wall by friends on the outside.

America Ahead.

WIMBLEDON, July 20.—Notwithstanding the fact that it rained quite heavily at times to-day and that the wind blew very strong, the English and American teams met at the range this morning and after an interesting contest the Americans won by eight points.

A London Festival.

NEW YORK, July 19.—A dispatch to the Evening Telegram from London says that over fifteen thousand people assembled last night at the fete of the fisheries to behold the royal and titled ladies selling fancy goods and dispensing American drinks with their fair hands to all comers, thus beguiling the gold from the pockets of the public and society generally to aid the Crown Prince of Germany to found an English chapel at Berlin. The Princess of Wales sold buttonhole flowers at a guinea a bunch, the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Christiana took charge of the light refreshments buffet and the Duchess of Albany, the Princess Teck and the Marchioness Tseng, the wife of the famous Chinese Ambassador, presided over a gaily illuminated Chinese tea house.

There was a decided run on the cup that cheers but not inebriates, the royal ladies and the Marchioness selling with their own hands over three thousand cups. Several fans specially made for the occasion by Marquis Tseng himself were sold at fabulous prices and tea packets embroidered by the olive fingers of the Marquis Tseng's two young daughters were also in great demand. The Countess Dufferin presided over a fish pond where the Prince of Wales fished and made several lucky catches.

Theatricals were given in two canvas theatres, a pleasing selection being offered by the Royal Criterion Company. Miss Ada Cavendish was enthusiastically applauded for her delivery of the "Charge of the Light Brigade." This, the greatest fete of the London season, did not end till the Chinese lanterns and electric lights were put to shame by the rays of the rising sun.

A Fearful Fire.

NEW YORK, July 19.—At about 10 o'clock this morning a spark from an engine fell into a pile of jute which had been landed on Harbeck's dock, from the ship Lawrence E. Delap, from Calcutta. The dock was filled with hemp, jute and coffee. The flames spread with incredible rapidity, and in a few minutes the entire dock was ablaze. The Delap was the first vessel to catch fire, and all her rigging was burned before the ship could be towed out. Next to her on the south side of the dock was the ship Perseverance, also from Calcutta, which arrived yesterday, and on the north side lay the ship Colonel Adams, from Calcutta. To both these vessels the flames communicated, and the crews jumped overboard for safety. In the meantime a general alarm had been sent out, and five steamers and four hook and ladders were soon on the spot.

Two of the dock hands also were reported drowned, and one sailor killed outright by falling timbers. The loss is estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

LATER—Three men were seen to throw the trunk of Captain Grove off the ship Laurence Delap. It contained £2,000 sterling and $4,000 worth of jewelry belonging to his wife. It was picked up by river thieves who rifled it. The wife and child of Captain Grove were saved. Twelve firemen were injured by the falling in of the burning roof of the pier, but only one is thought to be fatally hurt.

A Chase after Burglars.

MOUNT CARMEL, July 20.—Moutelius & Richter's store was broken into last night and an unsuccessful attempt made to blow open the safe, after which the burglars packed up $300 or $400 worth of dry goods. Officer Knipe, who was in the vicinity of the store, was attracted by the robbers' dim lights in the room and started to investigate. He had just reached the scene of operation when the robbers hurriedly walked out, with their booty. A lively race was engaged in by the officer and the two men, who dropped their bundles and fired upon the officer, without effect. After placing the stolen goods in a place of safety Knipe started in pursuit of the men, but they were not to be found.

Captured Criminals.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Michael Rozutto, of 462 West Fortieth street, and Rosario Letto, his reputed wife; Mary Calletto and Lizzie Cornello, the latter a girl of twelve, were brought before United States Commissioner Shields by detectives Kelk and King, of the Twentieth precinct, yesterday afternoon, charged with passing counterfeit ten, twenty-five and fifty cent pieces upon various shopkeepers on Tenth avenue and neighboring streets.

The four prisoners are wretched-looking Italians. They were sent to Ludlow street jail in default of $2,500 bail each.

Offices Elected.

PITTSBURGH, July 19.—The State convention of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics in session here to-day elected the following officers: State councillor, Henry J. Reily; state vice councillor, F. Keechlin; state council secretary, Edward S. Deemer; state council treasurer, John W. Caloci; state council conductor, Wm. R. Stroh; state council warden, William A. McGlum; state council sentinels, Joseph B. Coobaugh and Charles A. May; national council representative, D. B. Conoway.

American Sailors Arrested in England.

LONDON, July 20.—The Standard says great complaints have been made against the excesses of the crew of the United States steamer Lancaster. The police have been obliged to arrest several sailors and officers belonging to the vessel.

Hunting a Murderer.

LYNCHBURG, Va., July 20.—Several days ago in Wise county a difficulty occurred between Dr. Howell and William Addington, which resulted in Howell killing Addington whom he shot three times. A posse of three hundred men went in pursuit of Howell, but at last accounts had not captured him.

The Polk Trial Nearing an End.

NASHVILLE, July 20.—The evidence in the Polk trial closed this afternoon and counsel for the prosecution and defense submitted the case. Two hours will be allowed each attorney to-morrow for argument and it is expected that the Judge will charge the jury to-morrow evening.

Hanlan Wins Easily.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., July 18.—The Hanlan-Ross race was rowed this evening and was won by Hanlan with the greatest ease by a quarter of a mile. The distance was four miles with a turn. Hanlan's time was 27 minutes 57½ seconds, beating the best record.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—This community—(those who are not Christians and hence not capable of judging and those who profess to be Christians)—are more or less agitated because a negress is in town who is endeavoring to cure disease by prayer and faith. In the first place, we do not think this fact is anybody's business except the negress and the patient. But the reasons that are urged against such a course by both press and pulpit are ridiculous. They object because the negress is from a distance and they urge that it is a disparagement of the faith of Bellefonte Christians to presume that this negress has more faith and hence more healing power than they. Now, we personally do not believe that this negress exerts any other power than perhaps a magnetism which she may be possessed of, but we are willing to believe that she has more and a better quality of faith than is known in Bellefonte,—if she hasn't we sincerely pity her. When the great Object of faith was on earth He found obscure persons who had more faith than all they of Israel. "True religion and undefiled among men is to visit the widows and fatherless in their affliction and to keep yourself unspotted from the world." This is not done in Bellefonte. True faith is shown only in good deeds and in all such evidences of faith Bellefonte Christians are woefully deficient. Show your faith by your works and we will believe you have it. In the meantime do not decry those whose works amply testify to their faith.

Beaver Street Booming.

Real estate operations on Beaver street continue uninterruptedly. The street is being fenced in and the three hundred lots are being sold rapidly. The prices of these lots are $200, $250 and $300, according to location. We understand that a project is on foot to erect a large number of tenement houses, Mr. John Ardell having already contratced to build four of them. They will be valued at about $800 each and will rent on reasonable terms, making convenient houses for the employes of the nail works, glass works and lime kilns. Many of these houses will be completed before winter and there is every prospect that the increase of population promised in Bellefonte will be accommodated with excellent and comfortable homes. Meanwhile an impulse will be given to building operations which should make mechanics and contractors rejoice.

A Bit of Conversation.

A Bellefonte gentleman and lady recently conversed on a subject familiar to both, and in this instance, at least, the lady excelled in repartee:

"We ladies had a most enjoyable 'hen' party a few days ago," remarked the lady.

"I suppose you had a pleasant party," returned the gentlemen, "but I'll wager we enjoy ourselves more at our 'stag' parties."

"But they ofttimes end in stagger parties," neatly returned the lady.

When the gentleman spoke again it was on a different subject.

—Sunday, July 15, was St. Swithin's day, and it rained in a very pronounced and determined manner. If we were to place faith in ancient popular notions we would anticipate another deluge of storms in the near future for, according to a well known saying, if it rains on that day there will be more or less rain for forty days to come. We prefer, however, to tack our faith on the more modern theory that sun spots influence the prevalence of storms, and as such spots have appeared in remarkable numbers of late we are willing to believe that St. Swithin's day indications will probably be fulfilled this year.

—Large quantities of stone are brought to town for the High street bridge.

Death of Mrs. Rachel B. Humes.

We are called upon to record a very sad event in the death of Mrs. Rachel B. Humes, of Jersey Shore, which occurred at the residence of her brother, Mr. William H. Humes, near this place, Thursday evening. Mrs. Humes is a sister of Mr. E. C. Humes, President of the First National Bank, and was visiting her relatives in this place arriving about one week ago. The physician states that her death resulted from cancer of the stomach. She was subject to attacks of severe illness, but the attack which resulted in her death was much more violent than any that had preceded it. Her only son, Mr. Hamilton Humes, of Jersey Shore, was at her bedside at the time of her death. The deceased was over 65 years of age. Her husband, Mr. Samuel Humes, died several years ago. A brief funeral service was held at the residence of Mr. William H. Humes at Coleville at 7 o'clock Friday evening and the remains were conveyed to Jersey Shore on the 8:55 p. m. train.

—According to the act of assembly of 1878 the trout fishing season ends July 31—comprising the months of April, May, June and July. While the acts have been amended in some respects by the acts of assembly of 1879 and 1881, there has been no change made in the time fixed by it for the catching of trout.

Notes by the Wayside in which an Accident, Sundry Personals and a Picnic are Alluded to.

Quite a serious accident occurred on Monday morning, July 16, a short distance above Port Matilda. A gang of workmen under John Weaver, division boss, were traveling on a hand car along the railroad when a special car containing Hon. S. S. Blair, General manager, appeared in sight. It was not noticed until quite close as a heavy fog prevailed. John Robinson, of Port Matilda, leaped from the car, breaking one of his legs. Mr. Williams narrowly escaped instant death. He jumped from the hand car and fell in front of the engine, the cow-catcher striking him and pushing him from the track, fortunately without serious injury.

Mrs. Laura McKee, of Altoona, and Mrs. Carrie Trimmer, of Vinton, Ohio, were recently the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Stiver, of Martha. Mrs. T. is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Stiver. She was formerly a Miss Shultz, of Warriors Mark, Pa. Her husband, Mr. George Trimmer, is a train dispatcher. The ladies are now visiting friends in Huntingdon county and do not expect to return to their homes until the latter part of August.

Mr. George Williams, of Ogle county, Illinois, his wife and son John Williams, are the guests of Mr. Joseph F. Williams, of Martha. Mr. Williams has reached the great age of 83 years and it is surprising that he is able to take such a long journey. He has been a resident of Illinois about 30 years.

Mr. Alexander Chaney, of Port Matilda, is remodeling his fine residence and the result will be a marked improvement in its appearance. The fact that Mr. David Richards, the well-known carpenter, of Martha, has charge of these improvements is conclusive evidence that they will be carried on expeditiously and completed in a workmanlike manner.

Mr. Henry Harman, an attache of the Singer sewing machine office of this place, was taken suddenly and violently ill with cholera morbus while at Stetler's hotel, Port Matilda, at an early hour Thursday morning. His cries for help aroused the inmates of the hotel and he was found quite helpless and suffering acutely. Dr. Harshberger, the physician in attendance, gave an opinion that his condition was beyond medical aid as his extremities seemed to be cold and almost lifeless. Either the physician's skill or the patient's vitality were underestimated, as Mr. Harman recovered sufficiently to take the train for home Friday morning and is now improving.

The picnic of the Tyrone Presbyterian Sunday-school at Fowler's Station on Thursday was one of those events which leave a lasting and pleasant impression upon all the participants. Four passenger coaches arrived about 9:30 o'clock a. m. unburdening their merry multitudes of pleasure seekers who repaired to the delightful grove where the time passed enjoyably to all. The grove is supplied with three excellent swings, comfortable seats and large dinner tables. It is estimated that 500 people were present. Mr. John T. Fowler, the owner of the grove as well as of the beautiful residence and other property adjoining, seemed to consider the picnicers his special guests and exerted himself to the utmost for their entertainment. He was abundantly aided in his endeavors by his efficient clerk and bookkeeper, Mr. Richard Beaston. The excursionists feel that they owe these two gentlemen many thanks. Mr. McCampent, of Tyrone, the superintendent of the Sabbath school, managed the excursion with consummate skill. This gentleman has had the benefit of experience which enables him to conduct himself creditably in such responsible positions, the time spent in representing his county in the legislature in 1878 doubtless contributing to that result.

Among the persons whom we noticed on the picnic ground in the full enjoyment of the day's pleasure were Augustus Landis, Esq., a distinguished attorney of Hollidaysburg; Dr. A. Harshberger, of Milroy, uncle of Dr. Harshberger, of Port Matilda and of H. H. Harshberger, Esq., of this place; W. E. Hamer, the careful and efficient telegraph operator at Vail station; Miss Lizzie Beck, of Altoona; and Miss Mary Atkinson, of Camden, New Jersey. The following were from Tyrone: Rev. S. M. Moore, pastor of the Presbyterian church; Mr. Charles Whitney; Gen. R. A. McCoy, President of Blair County Bank; Albert Winters, who is prominent in telegraph circles; H. M. Myers, a well known insurance man; A. E. Reed, editor of the Tyrone Herald; Dr. J.M. Smith; Dr. R. Clark, railroad physician; A. M. Woodin, formerly editor of Tyrone Times and now in the mercantile business and Harry Brew, formerly of this place. Bellefonte was represented by Walter Bayard and Miss Mary B. Morris.

The only person among the above imposing array whom we shall mention particularly is Mr. A. E. Reed, editor of the Tyrone Herald. He excelled himself in his efforts to make himself agreeable and succeeded admirably. We were glad to make his acquaintance.

We also desire to refer specially to Mrs. John T. Fowler, without whose aid in making the occasion pleasant many would not have enjoyed themselves so thoroughly as they did. She deserves congratulation on the success that crowned her efforts.

The territorial extension of the telephone is making progress. Poles are now in position from Vail to about a quarter of a mile this side of Julian.

Mr. John I. Thompson, of Martha, in addition to the excellent store which he conducts has three acres of tobacco which presents as fine and luxuriant an appearance as any we have ever seen and will doubtless be a source of profit to him and will give Wash Rees, his scientific cigarmaker, abundance of work.

Dog Days.

Tuesday, July 17, says the Altoona Tribune, was the beginning of what is widely known as the "dog days," which precede and follow the heliacal rising of the star Sirius—in the constellation of the Greater Dog—in the morning, which in Pliny's time was on the 18th of July. The extreme heat of this season of the year, although to us palpably the effect of the continued high position of the sun, was connected by the ancients with the appearance of this star in the morning. They considered the dog star as raging, and gave the time the appellation of the dog day. The liability of dogs to rabies in consequence of the heat of the season was connected with the same star, though there was nothing but accident in the collusion and they butchered these animals without mercy. At Argos there was a festival instituted for the killing of dogs during this season. By the procession of the equinoxes the heliacal rising of Sirius in the morning has been changed to the latter end of August, and in a few thousand years will take place in the depths of winter.

Be Gentlemanly.

It may be set down as a rule that no one can afford not to be a gentleman. It is best to learn this rule early and practice it late. It is not well to say mean things of another, because in most cases you will have to take it all back in bitterness of heart when he does you an unexpected favor. It is not wise to treat any one brusquely, because you can not always judge a bird by the feathers he has on. It is not well to look down on anybody, because the time may come when he will look down on you. There is a certain self hood in every one which should be respected. We have no right to infringe upon it. It is not morality, it is not mere conventional rule, it is not simply a social regulation; it is something in the nature of things that you should always show a delicate regard for others. One who did not fail here was never known utterly to fail elsewhere.—L. H. Journal.

—The Catholic picnic will be held on the 1st day of August. The young folks are selling picnic dinner tickets. There is also a contest in progress for some article of jewelry between lady members of the church.

Business Notices and other Items.

—The Holy Communion will be administered in the Reformed church next Sabbath.

—Coffee, tea and canned fruits at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

—There will be a moonlight excursion on Thursday evening to the top of Nittany Mountain

—Wolf and Parsons are the tinners at Jas. Harris & Co.'s hardware store. 28 2t

—Miss Robbins, of Camden, New Jersey, is a guest at the residence of Mr. Bell on Bishop street.

—Order your groceries at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

—The mercury tried to climb out the top of the "tormentor" on Monday and ascended as high as 90° in the effort to do so.

—A gentleman writing from Alexandria, Dakota, says that territory is far in advance of Pennsylvania so far as agricultural operations are concerned. He writes that there are plenty of oat fields that will yield from 70 to 100 bushels per acre. Every inducement, he says, is offered for western bound people to settle there, but he does not say that an attraction equal to Sechler's grocery store exists in the territory, so we won't go. We shall stay here and advise people to purchase all their groceries of Sechler.

—Sunday was one of the most sultry days of the summer.

—Excellent supplies of sugar, cheap, at Aarry Teats & Co.'s store.

—Street sprinkling is extensively indulged in by our citizens.

—A superior quality of sugar for use in preserving fruit at Sechler's grocery store.

—The attendance at the Y. M. C.A. meeting Sunday afternoon was not very large.

—Go to Jas. Harris & Co.'s hardware store for your tinware, spouting, roofing and repairing. All work warranted. 28 2t

—Work upon the Bellefonte and Buffalo Run Railroad on Thursday was pushed as far as the glass works.

—Of the hundreds of people who buy groceries of Sechler not one is ever disappointed.

—Mr. C.W. Burd, of Aaronsburg, is suffering from the effects of breaking his right arm a few days ago. He fell to the ground while engaged in removing the scaffolding from the new church at Coburn.

—Harry Teats & Co.'s grocery store is constantly stocked with a large supply of the best groceries.

—If one of our lady friends desires to make a suggestion to her beau she should present him with a canteloupe. He will probably say, "Why can't you elope?" and she will answer: "Because you haven't ask me to."

—When you want a first-class job of tinwork done go to Harris' hardware store and have Wolf do it. Best stock First-class mechanics. 28 2t

—Mr. Steele expects to complete the repairs to the planing mill pond early this week. The structure has been built very solid and about two thousand tons of stone were used to fill in. He believes the work has been accomplished more rapidly than any similar operation was ever before performed in Bellefonte.

—The trout fishing season will end on August 1, after which time anglers will be compelled to try their luck upon less aristocratic fish. It would be interesting to know how many trout have been caught since the season opened and who is the most fortunate angler. We cannot answer that question, but can testify that many people have caught fine groceries at Sechler's store and derived more pleasure and satisfaction by doing so than a majority of anglers who got nothing but trout.

—Most of the members of the Second brigade, N. G., are very glad that Conneaut Lake has been selected as the site for the annual encampment. It is a charming location, in the midst of an excellent agricultural country, with milk, eggs, etc., unusually plenty and cheap. The advantages of rides on the lake are also said to be excellent.

Religio-Philosophical Journal.

A large eight page weekly paper, devoted to the exposition of the Science and Philosophy of Modern Spiritualism; an advocate of Free Thought and General Reform, and a channel for the discussion of all matters of interest relating to the advancement of civilization.

A Broad and Liberal Platform.

We shall advocate the Spiritual Philosophy with its bright outlook toward the life beyond, undimmed by any haze or darkness of uncertainty; yet, while holding firmly to our own ideas, and criticising others, fairly, frankly and strongly if need be, we shall respect all honest opinions, give them a fair hearing, and so aim to win the respect of those from whom we may differ.

Of the passing events and sayings of the day, in Church and State and social life, as they bear on the objects for which the paper is published, we shall make due record and comment. Of the wonderful yet natural facts and phenomena of spiritualism, as they occur all over the land, we hope to make valuable record. In all that the wide scope of the RELIGIO-PHILOSOPHICAL JOURNAL takes in we shall strive to enlarge and enrich our pages, and call in the help of new and valuable correspondents, in response to the generous and enlarging support of the earnest and intelligent people whose aid and sympathy is our inspiration to new effort.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Western Union Employes.

NEW YORK, July 16.—A committee from the Telegraphers' organization, composed of seven members from different cities, called on General Eckert about 1 o'clock to-day and presented a letter requesting a general increase of 15 per cent. in the salaries of operators and a slight reduction in their hours of work, and requested that a reply be returned as early as convenient. No time was stipulated for and no threats made. When the committee presented the memorial they were asked if they represented the employes of the Western Union company. They answered "yes." But upon examining the paper the officers found no list of employes. The committee said they could not furnish such a list as it would take time to prepare it and they were here under expense. They were told the company did not recognize the committee and would expect a list of such of its employes as desired to be represented by the committee. It is understood that this list is being prepared.

AT BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, July 16.—A committee of three representing the telegrapher's brotherhood called to-day at the office of the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph company and were received by Mr. Stewart, superintendent of the company. The committee presented Stewart a paper or address, similar to that presented to Gen. Eckert, of the Western Union company in New York to-day, asking an increase of pay and a reduction in the hours of work, etc. The address was afterward handed to George P. Frick, general manager of the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph companies, and the committee were informed that the matter would be given deliberate and respectful consideration and an answer returned.

AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, July 16.—The telephone climbers, repairers and instrument men made a demand for an increase of twenty-five per cent. in their pay to-day and stated that they would await a decision of the company for forty-eight hours.

A Lock Out.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The cigarmakers of the Protective Union did not return to work in the factory of S. Ottenberg & Bro., up to the time of closing this evening, and according to a mutual understanding the factories of all the members of the United cigar manufacturers' association to which the Messrs. Ottenberg belong, informed their employes that there would be no work for them until the strike in question is adjusted. Consequently there are nearly 7,000 cigarmakers, many of them women, out of employment. Ottenberg Bros. say they will take their men back whenever they are willing to return, providing they go to work with the twenty-six men who are members of the International union. Of the 7,000 locked out only a quarter are union men, but since the lockout the ranks of the Protective union are being rapidly recruited. During the past two days nearly 1,200 new members have been received and each day will probably bring new additions to the ranks. The manufacturers say, that in consequence of the reduction of the tax in May and June, most of the factories had a large stock of cigars on hand and the jobbers had more than they could dispose of in two months. More over they were willing to suffer a loss rather than submit to the dictation of their employer. The secretary of the international union said to-night that their organization could stand the lockout very easily.

Murder near Lewistown.

LEWISTOWN, July 16.—Reed Alexander to-day refused to go out of a field in Armagh township when ordered to so by the owner, Samuel Longwell, and the latter struck him on the head with a rail inflicting injuries from which Alexander died within an hour. Longwell was arrested.

HARRISBURG, July 16.—A special to the Patriot gives further particulars of the killing of Reed Alexander, in Mifflin county. It says Alexander gained permission to pick berries on Longwell's farm, occupied by his son Samuel. Samuel did not know of the permission and when he saw Alexander he ordered him off. The latter refused to go when Longwell picked up a fence rail and knocked him down, killing him instantly. It is the first murder in the history of the county.

Scouring the Mountains for a Missing Woman.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., July 15.—Mrs. Muhlenberg, a highly respectable German lady of this place, mysteriously disappeared from her home yesterday evening and has not been seen or heard from since. This morning at an early hour about twenty-five men, friends and neighbors of the missing woman, started out to scour the mountains. Some of them returned at 8 o'clock to-night and report that no trace of Mrs. Muhlenberg could be found. Some time ago she was taken very ill and never fully recovered. It is feared she wandered off while suffering from temporary aberration of the mind. Her family are almost distracted and fear something serious has happened to her.

Western Union Directors.

NEW YORK, July 18.—A meeting of the directors of the Western Union telegraph company was held at 12.30 to-day. One of the gentlemen who attended the meeting says the sentiment was unanimous in support of the action of General Eckert in his reception of the committee who called on him to present the memorial last Monday, and that his letter to Colonel Clowry, of Chicago, outlining the position and resources of the company and calling attention to the exorbitant demands of that committee, was likewise discussed and warmly approved. The meeting did not take cognizance in fact of the position, since it was held that whatever complaints the employes of the company might have to make must be made directly by themselves to the company's officers. The sub-committee is not empowered except to make a report next Wednesday, when the full committee meets again. The composition of the committee, however, is of some interest as bearing on the temper of the meeting and its future action. Mr. Clendenin, one of the members, is president of the Acadia coal company which has extensive mines in Pictou, N. S. The miners there have been a turbulent community and have frequently indulged in strikes. Mr. Clendenin has always managed these crises and has never yielded to the demands made through the medium of a strike. Ex-Governor Cornell and Mr. Terry are also said to be opposed to the strike as a means of settling wage difficulties.

The Wheatstone is a system of rapid transmission of messages and news. It has been in use for many years in England but is comparatively a new thing in this country. The instrument will do nearly ten times the work that can be done over an ordinary wire. Should the Wheatstone operators remain and the other operators strike the telegraph company would have a considerable advantage through the use of this system. The members of the brotherhood claim that nearly all of the Wheatstone men are willing to go out, while the managers of the company say that not more than two or three of the nineteen local employes and not a large number of those elsewhere will consent to strike.

Convention in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, July 17.—The twenty-fourth annual session of the grand lodge of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics commenced this morning in Pride of the West hall, Boyle's block Federal street, Allegheny. The business will occupy two days, and on Thursday the visitors will be entertained by an excursion down the river on the steamer Alice. Each council is entitled to send two representatives. There are 130 delegates in attendance. Mr H. Wells Buser, of Hummelstown, Dauphin county, is the state councillor, and occupied the chair. The meeting was called to order promptly at 10 o'clock and considerable time was consumed examining the credentials of the delegates. The business of the morning session was of a purely routine character, hearing the reports of the officers and various committees, and nomination of officers. The elections, addresses, reports of actions by the local councils and the consideration thereof is on the programme for to-morrow. This order is one of the first of its kind in the state, having about $109,000 in the treasury and a membership of about 90,000. The present officers are State Councillor H. Wells Buser, of Hummelstown; State and National Secretary Edwin T. Deemer, of Philadelphia; assisted by State Vice Counceller H. J. Deile, of Philadelphia, and State Treasurer John W. Calvert, of Philadelphia.

Eight Boilers Explode.

READING, Pa., July 17.—The eight boilers of the Anthracite furnace, owned by the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company, and operated by William M. Kaufman & Co., exploded at an early hour this morning, reducing the furnace to a mass of ruins. Preparations had been made for casting, and the employes were outside of the building taking a rest before tapping the furnace when the explosion occurred. Large pieces of the boilers were hurled a great distance, and the debris of stone and shattered timber was thrown about in great confusion. The engine and boiler house were entirely demolished. Frank Waltman, aged 21, of Topton, was instantly killed, and Solomon Waltman, his father, was injured in the legs and the lower part of his body. Henry Waltman, aged 40, was rescued from under the ruins. He was injured internally and will die. Morris Good was severely scalded by escaping steam. Engineer Marstellar was also badly injured, a number o other employes slightly hurt. The force of the explosion shook the earth and aroused the people for miles around. The damage to the furnace will amount to many thousands of dollars.

The Governor's Nomations.

HARRISBURG, July 17.—The following nominations were sent to the Senate to-day: E. Copper Mitchell, member of the Board of Charities, vice George Harrison; Herbert M. Howe, member of the Board of Charities, vice Ellis Farwale. The nomination of Mitchell was confirmed, but the nomination of Howe was laid over five days, at the request of Senator Hughes, who desired to know something about him.

A Cyclone at Seidersville.

ALLENTOWN, July 16.—Seidersville, Lehigh county, and vicinity were visited yesterday at about half-past 7 o'clock by a cyclone which laid waste everything in its track. The cyclone struck the ground about one-quarter of a mile east of Seidersville, south of the Lehigh Mountain, in a grain field of Mr Cyrus Boyer, uprooting half of it, thence passing at a fearful velocity, striking Mr. Boyer's barn and knocking it into splinters. A sheep stable, a corn crib and a number of other small buildings, which were directly in the track of the funnel-shaped cloud were taken up by the wind and carried like chaff a distance of over eight hundred feet.

A piano-box buggy, also belonging to Mr Boyer, was taken up by the wind and carried a thousand feet away. It was broken to pieces. The house, however, withstood the storm, though it was almost entirely unroofed, and the inmates state that it shook like an earthquake.

Mr. Charles Ruhf's house and barn, situated on top of the mountain, were stripped of their roofs, the shingles and slate flying around in the air as if they were only pieces of paper.

The cloud that carried so much destruction in its train was about six to seven hundred feet wide and the storm was of about eight minutes' duration. The orchard of Mr. Frederick Pflueger was struck and every tree uprooted. All the fences are blown down and torn into kindling wood.

A Lock-out of Glass-Workers Threatened.

SANDWICH, Mass., July 15.—It is stated that if the local flint-glass workers, who are under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge, follow the instructions of the order to cease work for six weeks the Boston and Sandwich Glass Company's works will be closed indefinitely, throwing three hundred hands out of employment. Pots have been filled at the factory and the company has been expecting the men to return after their usual two week's vacation.

PITTSBURG, July 15.—A delegate who attended the National Convention of Window-Glass Workers, held here last week, stated in an interview to-day that the question of the proposed reduction of wages was discussed at great length, and the conference committee was instructed to positively refuse to listen to any proposition for a reduction. He asserted that while the manufacturers would make a demand for a reduction of twenty per cent., they would withdraw it and work would be continued next season at the old rates.

The Cholera Spreading.

CAIRO, July 17.—The sanitary commission are endeavoring to purify Cairo and to isolate the houses where the cholera has appeared, but if the disease takes a firm hold in the city it is probable that it will be allowed to take its course, and that general precautions will only be taken to check its progress. Baker Pasha, having expressed his opinion that the cordons around the city are now useless, they will probably be shortly removed, for the reason that it is believed that many scattered cases occur in the villages daily which the natives conceal, so as to avoid the imposition of the cordon.

ALEXANDRIA, July 17.—The cholera is spreading generally throughout the country. The sanitary commission are taking steps to isolate Alexandria. Twenty-eight deaths from the disease occurred at Damietta yesterday, 38 at Mansurah, and 15 at Samanoud.

PAINS IN THE BACK.—What they mean—How cured. A poignant pressing pain in the "small of the back" is a dangerous symptom. It means approaching kidney trouble—possibly Bright's Disease. It should not be neglected—not a day, not an hour. Fortunately, these symptoms are easily cured. Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine, is an absolute and unfailing specific for them, and for any diseases of the kidneys, bladder, liver, and urinary organs. A single bottle of Hunt's Remedy has many times saved a life.

The Bang Banished from the Church.

WILKESBARRE, July 15.—Rev. Father O'Haran, pastor of St. Mary's Church, this city, and the pastor of the Catholic Church at Plymouth have notified the young Sunday school children of their congregation that hereafter they will not be allowed to wear bangs or frizzes while attending Divine service. If they do they will be sent home. Rev. O'Haran, in a lecture to the children, condemned the fashion of wearing bangs in severe terms and said no young girl who ever expected to become a lady would be guilty of the act of banging. The parents coincide with the pastor, with few exceptions. It is understood that a circular has been issued by Bishop O'Hara to all the clergy of the diocese calling their attention to the matter.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE

That New York sculptor who was a party to the bogus duel, says he didn't want to chisel the New York dailies out of a sensation article.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning? The signal, perhaps, of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cents to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a million bottles were sold the past year. It relieves Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. For sale by John Harris.

From Chester to London.

FOURTH LETTER.

LANGHAM HOTEL, PORTLAND PLACE, London W.
JULY 2, 1883.

Leaving Chester June 25th, we next visited the beautiful town of Warwick. Quite near is the famous Warwick Castle, which Scott says "is the fairest monument of ancient and chivalrous splendor which yet remains uninjured by time." It is situated on a rock overlooking the Avon. The road leading to the Castle is cut through solid rock and shaded with gigantic old trees whose branches interlock and form an arch overhead of wondrous beauty.

Stratford-on-Avon is eight miles from Warwick. We were deeply interested in all that we saw here. We visited the house and sat down in the room in which Shakespeare was born. We also visited the Stratford church, in which Shakespeare is buried. It is an elegant church situated on the bank of the Avon. We were about as much charmed with the Avon, which Shakespeare has immortalized, as anything we saw—so quiet and peaceful, in perfect harmony with the surroundings. We sat down and enjoyed the scene. The sweet Avon was at our feet, the afternoon was perfect; we were shaded by elegant old-time trees, and around us were resting the dead of centuries. Shakespeare was buried in the chancel of the church which was erected in 1465. His wife lies near him; also his favorite daughter, "good Mistris Hall," and his younger daughter, Judith. We will ever remember with deepest emotions of pleasure our visit to the birthplace and grave of Shakespeare.

We took the train from Stratford for Leamington, a fashionable watering place, but only spent the night there and next day came on to London. On our way we passed Birmingham, a manufacturing town called the "Toy-shop of Europe." We also passed Windsor Castle, the residence of the Queen of England. It is 22 miles from London, and as the day was clear we had a good view of it. Before closing this letter I will say a word about the country we passed through. It is wonderfully charming, The farms appeared so rich and in perfect order. Our best streets in Bellefonte are not near so good for driving as the country roads of England. As for the towns we visited the streets were invariably paved with stone and perfectly clean, so that ladies can cross them at any time, and what is gathered from the streets is sold to the farmers to enrich their lands. In this way the cleansing of the streets pays for itself and adds no burden to the tax-payer. There is system in everything, and you cannot help but mark the intelligence and politeness. We have not seen a drunken man since we landed. The railroad companies have the power to arrest and imprison any intoxicated person found on their premises. This, probably, accounts for the absence of such persons.

T. R. HAYES.

Sights and Scenes in the World's Metropolis.

FIFTH LETTER.

LANGHAM HOTEL, PORTLAND PLACE, LONDON W.
July 2d, 1883.

We have been in London six days and expect to leave for Scotland today. We are completely tired out sight seeing—it is harder work than practicing medicine. London is the largest and richest city in the world. The population is about four and a-half millions. It contains more Jews than Palestine and more Roman Catholics than Rome. Every day 160,000 strangers enter the city and 123 persons are daily added to its population.

On account of the soft coal area the buildings all present a dark and dingy appearance. The streets are remarkably clean and well kept, but as crooked as a ram's horn. And often they number up one side and down the other—there is no system of numbering. And then again there is a frequent recurrence of the same name for a street; for instance, there are thirty-five King streets.

For one shilling, one or two persons can be driven in a handsome cab a distance of two miles. The omnibus runs in all directions, and for one, two or three pennies you can reach any part of the city. The omnibus generally carries about 30 or 40 persons—two-thirds of the number on top and one-third inside. A third system of locomotion is the underground railway, one of the "institutions" of London. Last year 85 millions of passengers were conveyed by the underground railway.

Just now is the height of the regular London season, which begins May 1st and continues to the last of July. Parliament is now in session, the Court is now "at home," the opera is in full swing, white coats and swallow tails prevail, and all London is happy and jubilant. The first place we visited was St. Paul's Cathedral, called the noblest building in the Kingdom. Its dome pierces the air to the height of 375 feet. It cost $4,000,000 and was 35 years being built. Many of England's most distinguished men are buried within this building. The monuments are very handsome and interesting. I can mention but a few, such as the Duke of Wellington, Admiral Nelson, Cornwallis and Moore. There are hosts of altars. The next place of wondrous interest we visited was Westminster Abbey, where all the Kings and Queens of England, from Edward the Confessor to Victoria, have been crowned, and where many of them are buried. When you enter the Abbey you are at once greatly impressed with its grandeur and beauty. The lofty pillars and exquisite arches are marvels of work. The aisles of the chapels contain the tombs and monuments of kings and queens. The Poets' corner is a very interesting part of the building. Heroes, statesmen and England's men of letters lie buried here.

The next most interesting place we visited was the Tower. William the Conqueror erected the present structure. As we entered we passed Tower Hill, the former place of execution. Passing along the outer ward, we come to the gloomy archway of the Traitor's Gate, by which State prisoners were brought to the Tower. Next we come to the Bloody Tower where the two youthful sons of Edward IV were smothered to death with pillows. Adjoining is the Record Tower, which contains the crown jewels. These jewels are kept in an iron cage. Queen Victoria's crown surmounts the collection. The next tower reached is called the White Tower. In this tower are collected and arranged the armors of the different ages and centuries. We also saw Tower Queen where Queens Anne Boleyn and Catherine Howard were executed, also Lady Jane Grey.

We also visited the National Gallery, which contains the choicest works of the old masters, also the new Houses of Parliament. We spent an entire day among the beautiful parks. We can only name them: Regents Park, Hyde Park, Kensington Gardens and St. James' Park.

T. R. HAYES.

From London to York.

SIXTH LETTER.

YORK, ENGLAND, July 3d, 1883.

We are now on our way to Scotland. York is midway between London and Edinberg. We came on the train called the "Flying Dutchman." We were four hours on the way, the distance being 200 miles. As usual, we were charmed with the country we passed through. The farmers were busy making hay. The wheat and oats looked very green, so that harvest time is much later than with us. All the crops looked well. York is a famous city, and our visit here has been more than ordinarily pleasant. We carried with us a letter of introduction from Rev. John Hewitt of St. John's Episcopal church, Bellefonte, to his uncle, Urban F. Hewitt, Archbishop of Holgate's school. We presented our letter of introduction and were most cordially received by Mr. Hewitt and his most estimable wife. They seemed to us like dear friends, and made most affectionate inquiries about Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt, of Bellefonte. Mr. Hewitt escorted us around and through York and we were thus enabled to see York better than any place we have yet visited. The Cathedral, or Minster, as it is called, is the chief attraction. It is built in the form of a cross. Its extreme length is 524ft; breadth across the transepts 250ft; breadth of nave, 135ft; breadth of choir, 130ft; height of central tower, 213ft. These measurements will give you some idea of its proportions. There are also two western towers, each 202 feet high, and also the Chapter House, 99 feet in diameter. The special features of the Cathedral are its dignity and massive grandeur. The architecture is of various styles. The transepts are early English, the nave decorated with beautiful tracery. The choir is in two styles, early perpendicular and later perpendicular.

The interior is the most impressive and interesting and would take a long letter to describe it. It is very rich in old stained glass. In the North transept there are five lofty and narrow lancet windows each 54 feet high and 5½ feet wide known as the "Five Sisters." They are filled with the original Early English glass of most lovely patterns. The great west window also contains the original glass of the 14th century. It is of eight lights, 54 feet high and 30 feet broad. The great East Window is one of the glories of the Cathedral, and is the largest window in England or probably in the world—it is 77 feet by 32 feet. This Cathedral is full of beautiful monuments commemorative of the saints, the brave soldiers and officers and the illustrious dead of all professions. This is certainly a most beautiful custom so much observed by England. She takes great pleasure and delight in perpetuating the memory of her illustrious and worthy dead in the most substantial and enduring monuments. There is nothing in England more interesting than the great cathedrals. And the more we study the architecture and the uses that are made of them the more we enjoy and reverence them. We lingered long in the York Minister, its majestic beauty grew upon our vision and the sweet strains of music strengthened our interest and attachment. We invariably hear such delightful music in the Cathedrals, so that Mrs. Hayes is more than pleased.

Antidote for Snake Bites.

For the benefit of hunters, fishers, berry gatherers, picnicers and others who go into regions where snakes most do congregate we are happy to inform them that at least one farmer knows of an antidote for snake bites more efficacious than whiskey. It is related by the Altoona Tribune that a few days ago while a teamster was engaged in loading lime stone, on the farm of Mr. F. P. Confer, a short distance from McKee's station, along the Martinsburg railroad, a copperhead snake bit him severely on the largest finger of the right hand. The hand swelled to great proportions in an incredibly short time, and it was feared the bite of the venomous reptile would prove fatal. Fortunately an old farmer, whose residence is near by, was within easy distance, for as soon as he learned of the occurrence he went into the wood, plucked a few stalks of weed known as lion-heart, and crushing the stalks and leaves to a pulp, put them on the wound as a poultice. The swelling immediately stopped and soon passed away altogether. When the remedy was applied first the entire right arm was affected. The next day the teamster was almost as well as ever.

—Mr. Washington Dunn, brother-in-law of Mrs. J. G. Love, of this place, died suddenly of apoplexy at Missoula, Montana, on Sunday morning of last week. His wife, Mrs. Love's sister, with one child, was then at Clifton Springs, N. Y., for her health, and the news of her beloved husband's death was imparted to her as gently as possible. She departed for Missoula on Thursday where the funeral occurred. He was the son of the late Judge Dunn and was a man of excellent traits of character and of large business experience. Extensive railroad operations in which he was engaged necessitated his presence in Montana where his death occurred.

Mere Mention from Martha.

Mr. Newton Williams, son of J. F. Williams, of Martha, is quite ill. We hope he may soon recover as he is an energetic and excellent young gentleman.

Mrs. John I. Thompson is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Henry, of Mifflin county.

A mammoth union picnic is in contemplation. All the Sunday-schools in the vicinity of Martha are urged to participate. The Baptist Sunday-school are the originators of the enterprise and we hope they will bring it to a successful issue.

Mr. Budd Thompson, one of the most enterprising gentlemen in this vicinity, is busy at work upon his various farming interests. He is a live, energetic business man and a valuable acquisition to any community.

—On Tuesday morning, the 17th instant, at a very early hour Mr. and Mrs. John Olewine were delighted with the arrival of a little stranger at their hospitable home on Willow Bank street. A little daughter will now rule the household with a firm yet gentle sway. If the old rhyme is verified which reads

First a daughter, then a son,
And then the world is well begun,

they are indeed on the high road to prosperity. We congratulate our young friends, and concede that John has a perfect right to carry himself in the high and lofty manner that marks his actions now. The "goat," who informed us that morning, is almost as much pleased as papa John.

—The difficulty with the curb market is that it is too popular with the residents of the town. It begins early in the morning, but there are so many purchasers in proportion to the number of sellers that everything disappears before many persons have time to get near enough to ask the price.

—We are informed that the new depot building to be erected by the Pennsylvania railroad in this place will be a "daisy." Tell us when you will build it, gentlemen; that's more important than the particular flower it will resemble.

Have You Asked Your Physician About It?

"Yes." Well, what does he say? "That it is only another of the thousand-and-one medical humbugs." Is he helping you? "No." Losing ground steadily? "I am afraid so." Not as well this year as last? "Very much worse." Then take a friend's advice and write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, of 1109 Girard street, Philadelphia, giving them a plain statement of your case. Ask them if they have ever treated a similar case with their Compound Oxygen, and if, in their judgment there is hope of your deriving any real and permanent benefit from its use. Ask them also to send you a report of some cases like yours which they have treated successfully. All this will cost you nothing, as these physicians make no charge for consultations. If the evidence they furnish is not satisfastory, then the matter can end, but if they should put you in possession of facts and evidence going to show that thousands of persons suffering from chronic diseases far worse, it may be, than yours, have been restored to comparative good health during the past thirteen years by the use of Compound Oxygen, the trifling effort of writing may prove the means whereby you will find a permanent relief from suffering, for which you will never cease to be profoundly thankful.

If, however, you are not ready to consult them at present, drop a postal card and ask them to send you their treatise on Compound Oxygen. The information in regard to their new treatment which you will gain from this treatise will enable you to judge of the chances in your favor which it offers.

—The Window Glass Workers' Association exerts an influence inculcating the highest morality among its members. A publication in the interest of the glass blowers, commenting on the work of the recent convention in Pittsburg, says: "The Window Glass Workers' convention adjourned sine die Friday evening, July 13th, shortly before 6 o'clock, having finished its labors. Among the business transacted during the day's session was the passage of stringent laws against drinking and the bringing of intoxicating liquors or beverages into factories. The subject was handled energetically and without gloves. An insurance fund was formed which will give to widows of members $1,000 upon his death. A statistician was appointed to carefully tabulate the number of "spare pots" caused by drunkenness on the part of employes, or neglect and carelessness of the employer."

—A number of Bellefonte's legal gentlemen and others on Wednesday visited the State Capital, the occasion being a great land trial, involving 800 acres, in which they are interested, which was adjourned about a month ago until the 19th of July—Thursday. The contestants are the Messrs. Holt, of Snow Shoe, and Mr. Samuel Hall of Beech Creek. Gen. W. H. Blair and ex-Senator C. T. Alexander are among the legal talent engaged on the case, and Mr. Joseph Devling and others who have a knowledge of the location of the land were in attendance as witnesses. It is doubtless but the beginning of what will involve long and expensive litigation. We uderstand the land in dispute lies in the neighborhood of Beech Creek.

—Reports are to the effect that the high mountain tops are literally black with whortleberries and lovers of the luscious berries may rejoice at the prospect of a plentiful supply. Whortleberry dumplings are much liked by some people.

Local Department.

—Very fine peaches are for sale in Williamsport.

—Now is the time to plant celery for winter use.

—Spring chickens of doubtful age are offered for sale.

—Several well developed drunks were observed lately.

—The Millheim cornet band festival will be held on August 4.

—C. W. Hosterman, of Woodward, had his collar bone broken recently by being thrust against a post by a vicious horse.

—The American Bar Association will hold its sixth annual meeting at Saratoga Springs on the 22d, 23d and 24th of August.

—There are very few communities that escape the ravages of fire so fortunately as Bellefonte. Not one has occurred for years.

—Some of the Lutheran churches in this vicinity will celebrate the 400th anniversary of Martin Luther's birthday during this month.

—The dwelling house of D. H. Rote at Aaronsburg was struck by lightning on Friday, July 13. The force of the electricity upset the stove.

—The telegraph operators' great strike interferes with the business of Bellefonte only to the extent that it occasions great delay in the transmission of messages.

—The Pennsylvania State Dental Society will meet in 15th annual session at Cresson, Pa., on Tuesday, July 31. Dr. J. W. Rhone, of this place will be in attendance.

—Help could not be secured to clean out the large reservoir on Wednesday and the work was postponed until Thursday when we believe it was successfully accomplished.

—The new frame residence for the Williams' Brothers on Methodist Hill presents a neat and elegant appearance. The paint on the outside is green-tinted and very pretty.

—Rides to the top of McCoy's Mountain, to Nittany's lofty height, to Snow Shoe and to Penn Cave afford considerable that is interesting and much that is pleasing to visitors.

—Which one of the Bellefonte couples who are now courting so earnestly will first indulge in matrimony? is a question that we would be pleased to have answered at once.

—Lightning continues to linger destructively about College township. Among the buildings damaged by it recently were the dwellings of Mr. George Cronmiller and Mr. William Grove, and barn owned by Mr. Taylor.

—The Western Union Telegraph operators stopped work on Thursday morning, their requests for an increase of pay not having been acceded to. We imagine that a lively state of affairs existed in the larger cities.

—A new morning paper—the Herald—recently started in Elmira, but suspended after three issues, the proprietor and editor, Mr. Fairman, succumbing under the severe mental strain which the conduct of the paper imposed on him.

—A man named David Lees was arrested at Williamsport on Wednesday and brought to this place to be confined in the county jail for the crime of altering two checks given by parties living at Zion. He is now out on bail.

—The topics which now engross the minds and thoughts of the Methodist Sunday-school attendants is the picnic on Thursday of next week. Among other sports a game of base ball is planned and will doubtless be carried into execution with that zest which characterizes all their undertakings.

—The signal by which the telegraph operators gave the information that the strike had commenced was by a message over the wires announcing the death of Gen. U. S. Grant. From this circumstance a rumor prevailed that the great soldier was actually dead, but he is said to be enjoying excellent health.

—The banking firm of Moore, Simpson & Co., of Lock Haven has ceased to exist and the "State Bank" has been organized in its stead. The board of directors are W. H. Moore, W. A. Simpson, W. B. Carskadden, John W. Smith, B. M. Fields, Charles R. Noyes and Wallace Gakle. The board of directors elected Col. W. H. Moore, President; W. A. Simpson, Vice President; E. C. McClure, cashier; H. W. Moore, teller; and H. Y. Harvey, solicitor.

MUNSON-GEPHART.

A Brilliant Wedding in the Episcopal Church and a Reception at the Bride's Residence.

The weather on Thursday evening was unusually fine and at an early hour a large and fashionable assemblage gathered in St. John's Episcopal church to witness the ceremony that united Mr. L. T. Munson, manager of the Bellefonte Glass Works, and Miss Sallie Gephart, daughter of ex-Representative J. P. Gephart, in the solemn bonds of matrimony. It was a few moments before the reliable old town clock extended her hand over the character that represents 7 o'clock that the happy bridal party arrived and advanced into the church. The interior of the sacred edifice was beautifully decorated with the fairest specimens of the floral kingdom. In the chancel was suspended a superb horseshoe and a mammoth wedding bell consisting largely of white flowers was suspended below. The initials "M." and "G.," in flowers, were also suspended on either side and other flowers in beautiful collections were placed in appropriate places. The party took positions beneath the floral bell and in a few minutes were made man and wife with the beautiful ceremony of the Episcopal church, Rev. John Hewitt officiating. Miss Mary Gephart, sister of the bride, accompanied by Mr. George Brew, attended the bride and groom. The costumes of the ladies were elegant in the extreme, the bride being attired in pink brocade damasses and satin with long train, and the bride's maid in light blue damasses, with satin. It was conceded to be one of the most beautiful weddings that was ever solemnized in this place. The happiness that illuminated the faces of the bride and groom when they left the altar was sufficient evidence of the peculiar bliss which the event occasioned them.

Miss Mary Bradley officiated at the organ, performing Lohengrin's wedding march.

After the wedding the reception, to which a select number of guests were bidden, commenced at the residence of the bride's father on Allegheny street and during the evening hours the apartments of the residence presented a scene of unwonted joy and festivity. An unusually elecollation was spread before the guests.

In an apartment on the second floor an elegant display of gifts was arranged, almost filling a large room, and resembling a brilliant bazaar in the wealth of the display. We are requested not to enumerate the separate gifts accompanied with the names of the donors, and shall only give them collectively with the names of a few. A gift which attracted our attention was a handsome silver ice pitcher, presented by the proprietors of the glass works, viz: C. T. Alexander, John Ardell, Jr., John Anderson, H. Sechler, J. K. McFarlane and and W. R. Teller. A jewel case containing five $20 gold pieces from J. P. Gephart, father of the bride. Miss Mary Gephart, sister of the bride, was represented by a beautiful silver tea set. A jewel casket from Miss Carrie Munson, of Philipsburg and silver articles of rare value from the father and mother of the groom. The gifts included a sewing machine, an easel, several sets each of silver knives, forks and spoons, four or five elegant engravings, glass ware in ornamental designs, one glass shell being peculiarly beautiful, jewelry, a very handsome clock, a beautiful lamp and scores of other articles.

Among the cards attached to the gifts we noticed names from Philipsburg, Clearfield, Williamsport, Columbus, Ohio, and other cities.

Miss Gephart is a beautiful and much esteemed young lady. She is the eldest daughter of Hon. J. P. Gephart and will make an excellent wife. The gentleman whom she now affectionately calls husband is a son of ex-Sheriff Munson, who resides in Philipsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Munson departed on the evening train for Cape May and other resorts, their exact route being uncertain. They will return in about ten days. We wish them much happiness.

—The stenographers who enjoyed a reunion in this place on Wednesday were S. N. Walker, of Bloomsburg; A. Hippard, Youngstown, Ohio; Oscar Meyer, Allentown, and J. Frank Condon, of Johnstown. J. Irvin Hagerman, of this place, was received into the Association, and together with Mr. W. F. Reber they composed a very pleasant party. Officers were elected to serve during the ensuing year as follows: President, Oscar Meyer, Allentown; vice president, A. Hippard, Youngstown, Ohio; secretary and treasurer, W. F. Reber. The assembly adjourned to meet in Philadelphia on the first Tuesday in August, 1884. The party rode to the top of Nittany mountain during the afternoon. Most of them departed on the 5 o'clock p. m. train.

The Murder in Mifflin County.

Our readers are much interested in learning the particulars of the tragic occurrence which was enacted on Monday morning, July 16, in Mifflin county, which interest is increased by the fact that both the murderer and his victim have relatives in this vicinity and the former was at one time a resident of Penns Valley, this county.

C. Reed Alexander, the murdered man, is a well known resident of Milroy, Mifflin county. He went to a farm owned by John Longwell and rented by Samuel Longwell, in New Armaugh township, to pick some berries. He met Samuel Longwell near the fence dividing the separate fields, the two being on opposite sides of the fence. According to Samuel Longwell's story, they had some words about the berries and Alexander jumped upon the fence for the purpose of crossing to attack Longwell, when the top rail on which he stepped broke, and Longwell then picked up a piece of the broken rail and struck at Alexander, hitting him on the head. Alexander then moved away and Longwell followed him and choked him and made him promise to "leave the berries and behave himself," and then left him. There was no other known witness to the occurrence, but it seems that Alexander was able to walk away a short distance where he met John Longwell, who was on his way to the same place. Longwell, seeing that Alexander had been hurt, said, "Why, Reed, what in the world is wrong?" Alexander was able to say, "Sam hit me with a rail, and if I had had a fair chance I would have held my own." Mr. Longwell then assisted the wounded man into his house, and asked him if he should send for a physician, to which he replied that he did not think it worth while. He then hitched into his spring wagon and took the man home, where he died about two hours after. Longwell was arrested and put in jail. Alexander was always known as a civil and peaceable man. He was about 41 years of age and married, but leaves no family except his wife. His parents, aged and in feeble health, are both living.

Longwell is about 27 years old, has always been employed as a farm hand, and has a wife and one child.

Death of Mrs. Susan Fortney.

For a week or more Mrs. Susan Fortney, relict of David Fortney, Sr., and mother of our legal citizen, D. F. Fortney, Esq., has been lying at death's door at the home of her son, James Fortney, near Pine Grove Mills. Her life was despaired of and her children were summoned to her bedside. The spark of life darkened into death and, like a fire slumbering and almost extinguished which sometimes revives into a bright flame, so her life—her immortal existence—having survived the dissolution of its earthly tenement, weary of the clouds that obscure life's fitful flame, is illuminating with a bright and ever-increasing glory the home of the blessed in heaven. At five o'clock on Thursday afternoon the mourning relatives at her bedside bade her good-bye. They could do so without feelings of apprehension and fear for a life of 71 years had abundantly fitted her for the eternal mansions where the redeemed of God go no more out forever.

David Fortney, Sr., the husband of Mrs. Susan Fortney, died about 18 or 20 years ago of the spotted fever, a disease which at that time swept over the country. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fortney was carried away by the same disease. Since then Mrs. Fortney has lived a widow, blessed with the respect and love of her children and neighbors. She was well known by the appellation "Grandmother Fortney." She was a consistent and devout member of the Lutheran church. In addition to D. F. Fortney, Esq., a distinguished lawyer of this place whom we have already alluded to, three other sons survive—John Fortney, of Tyrone; William Fortney, who we believe is a prominent Lutheran minister located somewhere in New York State; and James Fortney, a farmer living near Pine Grove mills, at whose home her death occurred.

We believe that Mrs. Fortney came to this county from Lebanon about forty years ago and has resided in the neighborhood of Pine Grove ever since.

The funeral occurred at Pine Grove Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, and was largely attended by people from the neighborhood and from Bellefonte.

—A party of about twelve in number, largely composed of gentlemen from a distance, were over viewing the "Pennsvalley cave," on Friday. Among them were Mr. V. B. Ulman, of Lock Haven, Mr. S. B. Frank, of Pittsburg, and Mr. M. Grauer, of Baltimore, Md. They report a very pleasant time.

Meeting of Borough Council.

The members of council present at the last regular meeting were Ardell, Crider, Walkey, Tate, Shortlidge, Ceaders, Bartley, McCafferty and Brown.

The minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

The Street committee reported that a large number of people had not yet complied with the order to repair pavements and gutters and had been notified to repair them immediately. Also submitted an approximate statement of stone delivered for abutments of Spring creek bridge to July 16—$448. A motion that an order be drawn for the full amount less ten per cent. was carried.

Water committee reported that the reservoir is cemented and filled with water to the required level. The boilers at Water Works are almost repaired and will be put in operation this week.

Market committee reported $7.25 cents receipts during the past two weeks.

A difficulty with the screen at Water Works was referred to Street committee with power to make repairs.

On motion, the rate of assessment for taxes was laid at 2 mills for borough, 3 mills for street and 10 mills for interest. This is the same as last year.

J. M. Keichline, Daniel McGinley and William Jones were nominated for collector. Three ballots resulted in 3 votes for Keichline, 4 for McGinley and 1 for Jones. On the 4th, 5th and 6th ballots Mr. Jones received 2 votes. No choice was made and a special meeting is called for Wednesday evening, July 18, at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of choosing a collector.

A Visit from Railroad Officials.

On Saturday morning two cars containing railroad officials arrived in this place and the gentlemen, stepping from the cars, were joined by several citizens of Bellefonte, and proceeded short distances north and south along the track to inspect the property with the view of settling upon the most desirable site for the new depot building. The gentlemen were President Roberts; Mr. Pugh, general manager; Mr. Provost, Gen. Superintendent; S. S. Blair, Gen. Man. Bald Eagle Division; Mr. Richards, Asssistant Chief Engineer; Mr. Holliday, Engineer of Maintenance of Way; Mr. Reed and Mr. Almy. There were two or three ladies who remained in the cars, which also contained several servants, including cooks, porters and others. The cars seemed to be very elegantly arranged and under such comfortable and pleasant surroundings we hope the officials concluded to give the citizens of Bellefonte a depot building which will be an ornament to the town and creditable to the company which they so ably represent.

Business at the State Capital.

Among the land cases heard by the Board of Public Property at Harrisburg, Thursday, were four from this county. The Board consists of Attorney General Cassidy, Secretary of State Stenger and Secretary of Internal Affairs Africa. The cases are put down as follows:

Centre county—The Snow Shoe Coal Company vs. Patrick Wand. Caveat entered February 27, 1883: W. H. Blair for plaintiff, defendant appeared.

Centre county—The Snow Shoe Coal and Improvement Company vs. J. H. Holt.

Centre county—Same vs. Edgar Holt.

Centre county—Samuel Hall vs. Edgar Holt, W. H. Blair, Esq., for plaintiff, C. T. Alexander for defendant.

Decision was reserved until Thursday, the 26th. The land, we are informed, consists of 800 acres located northwest of Cato. The decision of the Board will be only an initiatory step to further litigation. The opposing counsel, Gen. Wm. H. Blair and ex-Senator Alexander, have returned home.

—One of the most distressing accidents which ever came to our knowledge occurred on Friday morning on the mountains near Mt. Eagle. Mrs. Martin, a widow, living at Mt. Eagle, went on the mountains with her little son Willie, who was seven or eight years of age, to pick berries. While they were engaged in one place Willie saw what he thought was still a better spot and pointing it out to his mother ran to it. In doing so he attempted to climb over a rock which weighed about a ton. But the mammoth stone rolled on him crushing his life out immediately. Imagine the feelings of the mother there on the mountain with her little son a mangled corpse at her feet. It is related that she was compelled to carry his body a mile and a half until she reached a place where assistance could be obtained. She is a poor woman with one other little boy and her situation entitles her to the sympathy of all charitably disposed people.

Personal Pencilings.

Ex-Judge Linn, of Williamsport, was in town last week.

Mr. A. J. Cook went to Harrisburg on Wednesday evening.

Ex-Assemblyman Gephart has been tarrying in town during the past few days.

Miss Kate Curtin, the brilliant daughter of ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin the present representative in Congress from this district, arrived at her home in this place on Tuesday, the 17th instant, after about a year spent in Washington and the summer resorts.

Messrs. A. C. Loneberger and David Haines departed on Tuesday evening, the 17th inst for Pittsburg to attend the State Council of the Junior Order of U. A. M. which convened on Wednesday in that city. They represent the Bellefonte branch of that organization.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Meginness, of Williamsport, arrived in Bellefonte Friday and went to Snow Shoe Saturday where they will make a brief visit. Mr. Meginness is an editorial writer on the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin and perhaps the most talented newspaper correspondent in Northern Pennsylvania. His nom de plume is "John of Lancaster."

Miss Ida Dillon and Misses Annie and Agatha Carr, who are numbered among the most charming inhabitants of Altoona, the great railroad city, are the guests of Mrs. Murphy, of Water street. Their visit, which will soon terminate, has been enjoyable not only to themselves, but to all the people of this place who have been so fortunate as to form their acquaintance.

The hospitable mansion of A. O. Furst, Esq., of Linn street, has been filled with guests during the past few weeks. At present Mr. and Mrs. Furst are entertaining Miss Jennie Hammond, a very handsome young lady of Lebanon, Pa., Mrs. John S. Furst, of Lock Haven, and Mrs. Frances A. Trowbridge, of Des Moines, Iowa. Mrs. Flora Fleisher, of Philadelphia, is visiting her friends in Bellefonte, including Miss Woods and the family of Mr. John Hoffer.

Col. D. H. Hastings and wife are entertaining their niece, Miss Emma Saltsman, of Lock Haven, at their hospitable residence on Linn street.

Mrs. Dr. Russ and her son, Mr. George Russ, who have been visiting at the residence of Mrs. Brockerhoff, departed for their home in Philadelphia on Friday morning.

Among the names placed on the Bush House register on Saturday were W. N. Estabrook, Elmira, N. Y.; J. F. Young, Philadelphia; John Nicholson, Shamokin; R. M. Bailey, Milton.

Rev. Frank Wetzle, formerly of this county and now located in Dakota, Ill., preached for the Reformed congregation in this place Sunday. He is visiting his Centre county friends.

Rev. William Laurie, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will depart this week on a four weeks' vacation during which his pulpit will be supplied whenever the session of the church are able to procure substitutes.

Rev. Geo, Penepacker, pastor of the M. E. church, returned from his western tour on Wednesday. He says his trip was most excellently timed as he was able to see vegetation in its fullest development and to gain a better idea of the crops in the sections visited than would have been possible at any other season of the year.

Mr. J. R. VanOrmer, junior editor of the Centre Democrat, announces his intention of retiring from that very responsible and laborious position for the purpose of accepting a situation as bookkeeper in an extensive tobacco warehouse in Philadelphia. His brief career in journalistic labors was exceedingly creditable and we wish him success in his new position.

—Hon. A. McAllister, a distinguished citizen of Springfield Furnace, Blair county, died suddenly at 8 o'clock a. m. on Wednesday. In 1862 he was elected to Congress over Hon. S. S. Blair. He served with credit to himself and constituents. He was an active business man, a liberal citizen and a firm supporter of temperance. His death will be greatly lamented.

—A competitive examination of applicants for a free scholarship in the Pennsylvania State College will be held at Harrisburg on the 3d of August.

—That game of base ball did not occur on Saturday afternoon, owing to the rain, and it has been adjourned until a future date.
